It has been said of Eakins that every picture he painted was part of his daily life; every figure a portrait of someone he knew; every scene a familiar one.

Justified, then, are Eakins' many paintings of rowers on the Schuylkill, for he was an ardent water sportsman. He himself rowed and knew many of the champion oarsmen. The Bigles brothers, portrayed in the cover picture, were good friends of Eakins.

DEVELOPMENT

by William J. Knecht

Your National Association of Amateur Oarsmen is acutely aware of the tremendous need for rowing development throughout the entire United States. With this need for development is the prime requisite for the national body to create a fund to assist in every rowing area.

In reviewing the history of the N.A.A.O., it has been determined that the N.A.A.O. was never incorporated and the Legislative Committee and the Executive Committee have determined that our Association should take the steps necessary to achieve incorporation.

In pursuing this course of incorporation, it has also been decided to amend our Constitution in accordance with counsel's suggestions to provide for the eventuality of our Association's applying for and receiving a charitable and educational I.R.S. classification.

Having completed these two very important phases of improvement to our National Association's status, we then will be in a very good position for promoting a fund drive to accomplish the many facets of development which are so vital to the growth of our organization.

The Legislative Committee has recently confirmed a model charter and by-laws to be used by all of the member organizations of our National Association. This document allows even the oldest of rowing organizations who have not properly established a set of by-laws to up-grade their charter status and provide a means of raising money through tax donations. This charter has been prepared by Dr. Ollie Brundage who has achieved outstanding success in developing school boy rowing in the West Virginia and the Ohio Valley area. There will be more information available from this committee in the future and for the present, anyone desiring help in developing a school, college or club program would do well to correspond with Dr. Brundage.

In an effort to develop a stronger Olympic Team in 1972, the National Association has requested and received a special grant to assist in aiding club organizations who will sponsor a Senior Rowing Program culminating with entries of their oarsmen in the National Championship Regatta. Your National Association will continue to develop funds and programs to help all of its members to increase the participation and caliber of their rowing programs.

Anyone who engages in the specialty of fund raising and who would be willing to establish a fund raising program for the purposes as aforementioned would be a welcome volunteer to assist our N.A.A.O. in this regard.

Pennsylvania Successfully Defends I.R.A. Championship

Heavily favored Pennsylvania held off the closing drive of surprising Dartmouth in the Varsity feature of the 1969 Intercollegiate Rowing Association Championship Regatta on Onondaga Lake in Syracuse, N.Y. on June 14. The Quakers did not achieve the sweep of the eight oared races as some anticipated they might, but they did capture the James A. Ten Eyck Trophy for best over-all performance.

In one of the most exciting finishes in memory, the Washington freshmen crew sprinted to catch the Penn yearlings in a dead heat in the first of the Championship Finals. Stork Sanford's Cornell Junior Varsity prevailed over second place Wisconsin by three-quarters of a length. Pennsylvania's JayVee was third.

In the second annual Varsity Fours race, Rutgers "A" entry won the most decisive victory of the finals, crossing the line ten seconds ahead of Orange Coast. The fours field was the largest in the regatta, with eighteen crews entered.

Conditions for the three day regatta improved steadily from the difficult side wind chop of Thursday's trials. Trials winners advanced directly to the finals on Saturday, with the trailing shells going to the Friday repechage program. Dartmouth's beautifully stroking eight raised eyebrows with a decisive two and one-quarter victory in their heat. Other varsity heat winners were Washington and Pennsylvania.

Rutgers "A" four and Washington's Freshmen were the only crews to win or share championships via the repechage route. The Rutgers four was beaten by Orange Coast in the trials, and then reversed the order in the Championship race. Two other noteworthy qualifiers in the repechages were the Cornell and Wisconsin varsity crews. In their trial heat, in which they were up against Pennsylvania as well as each other, both had serious mishaps occur during the race. The Wisconsin two man had his parlock gate come open, and as a result lost his oar, and then fell out of the boat himself. In the Cornell shell, the three oar had similar problems, finishing the race "swinging" with his crew, but without an

oar. Each crew won their repechage heat, truly having their "second chance."

The regatta consisted of thirty-three races, with the fastest time being posted by the Penn varsity in their trial heat in 6:06.8. This was the final race of the trials portion of the regatta, and the win was at its most favorable at that time. Friday and Saturday saw headwinds varying between 5 and 10 miles per hour, and quite calm water.

This year saw the change in the social activities associated with the event, as the Stewards Dinner was changed to a more informal Stewards Clambake, a move that proved to be most popular.

Harvard Has Great Day at Eastern Sprints

Harvard's Heavyweight varsity crew capped a brilliant day for the Crimson at Worcester on Saturday, May 10 with an upset victory over Pennsylvania, the crew that had ended the Harvard 34 consecutive collegiate victory skein the week before in the Adams Cup. Harvard also was victorious in all of the lightweight events and in the Junior Varsity Heavyweight race. Only the Pennsylvania Freshmen averted a clean sweep by Harvard.

Coach Joe Burk's varsity stayed even with Harvard for the first 800 meters, but the Harvard oarsmen, rowing at a steady 36, gradually pulled away for an open water victory.

Trophy presentations to victorious Harvard Varsity Crew at the Eastern Sprints.

Harvard was timed in 6:01.3, with Penn clocked in 6:06.8. Princeton was third in 6:07.9, Wisconsin fourth in 6:08.3, Cornell fifth in 6:10.1, and Northeastern sixth with a time of 6:10.7.

Cornell finished second in the Junior Varsity race, followed by Navy, Penn, Syracuse, and Northeastern. Penn was followed in the Freshman heavyweight race by Harvard in second and Syracuse in third.

As a result of their outstanding performance, Harvard won the Jope Cup for supremacy in the lightweight portion of the regatta, and the Rowe Cup for their two victories and a second in the heavyweight portion of the Regatta.

Washington Wins Western Thriller

Trailing for most of the race, Washington's fine varsity crew rallied to nip U.C.L.A. by 12 feet in the finals of the Western Sprints on Mission Bay in San Diego on May 16. In the battle of unbeaten crews, U.C.L.A. led from early in the race in an attempt to repeat their triumph over the Huskies in the Junior Varsity race. Washington's Freshman crew was an open water victor over second place Stanford.

In other events, Santa Clara captured the Varsity Four Championship, and Long Beach was victorious in the varsity lightweight race. The regatta involved 17 institutions from the Pacific Coast, one of the largest fields ever in the history of the Western Sprint Championships.

The Varsity race was a thriller all the way, with U.C.L.A. leading almost from the stakeboats, while Washington held

by Tony Johnson

Georgetown pulled away from a highly regarded St. Joseph's College crew during the body of the race to notch its second straight Varsity win in the 31st Annual Dad Vail Regatta in Philadelphia on May 10. Earlier Marietta successfully defended both the Junior Varsity and Freshmen titles. St. Joe's nipped Marietta in the final of the four with coxswain race, a new event this year.

St. Joseph's entered the varsity final as the top seeded crew in the field of 29 entries. Georgetown had lost to the Hawks early in the season by 13 seconds, but since that date had come back to win three straight races. Trinity took an undefeated crew into the final although not over what appeared to be as tough competition as St. Joe's and Georgetown were racing. Marietta, for several years the top power in the Vail, failed to make the final by finishing third to St. Joseph's and Trinity in a morning heat.

In the final, Georgetown and St. Joseph's started at 43 with Trinity at 46. All three crews were virtually even for the first 300 meters. Coming into the 500 meter mark Trinity crabbed just as Georgetown started to inch out in front of St. Joe's. Going under the Strawberry Mansion Bridge Georgetown was slowing increasing its lead with St. Joseph's second and Trinity about a length behind the leaders. George Washington was starting to feel the pressure of the pace and was dropping back. Massachusetts and East Carolina were about a length behind third place Trinity.

As the crews came clear of the bridge the two leaders, both at 34½, began to open up on the field. Georgetown kept adding to its lead and was a little open water ahead with 800 meters to go with Trinity another two lengths astern. Along St. Peter's Island, St. Joseph's went to 38 and closed the gap to ¼ of a length by the finish. Georgetown was timed in 6:19.4 with St. Joseph's at 6:21.9. Trinity was third another two lengths back. Massachusetts, George Washington and East Carolina rounded out the field.

In the frosh final, undefeated Marietta led from the start to win by a length over Georgetown. It was the fourth straight year that Marietta has won the freshman championship. Trinity finished third with Marist, Drexel and LaSalle trailing.

The junior varsity race was tight for the first 1000 meters as Trinity, Marietta, and Georgetown were closely bunched. Just past the thousand meter mark Trinity pushed ahead to a ½ length lead over Marietta with Georgetown another ½ length back. The three crews held this position into the final 400 meters. At that point Trinity started to sprint and was just beginning to add slightly to its lead when Marietta went from 34 to 37 and in 15 strokes was ahead. Over the last 200 meters Marietta slowly added to that lead to win by half a length with Georgetown a length behind Trinity. The three leaders had all qualified from the same semi-final heat, where Rollins was nipped by inches. Trailing in the final were Wayne State, Massachusetts, and LaSalle.

For the second year, Georgetown won the Jack Bratten Point Trophy. The Hoyas had 17 points with Trinity finishing second with 15 and Marietta third with 13.

Southern Intercollegiate Regatta

by Andre R. Brousseau

The Southern Intercollegiate Rowing Association held its Second Annual Regatta on Saturday April 26 in Charleston,

S.C. Hosting the event was the Citadel under the direction of Head Coach Jack Stewart. Jack also served as Regatta Chairman and did a magnificent job in setting up the course, and in preparing for the Regatta with accommodations, meals, boats and all of the other million things that make a Regatta a success.

A total of 18 crews representing 9 schools participated in the Regatta in 6 races. The morning events started with the 9 Varsity crews competing for places in the afternoon finals. As a result of these heats Florida Southern, Alabama, Rollins, the University of Virginia, East Carolina and Jacksonville moved into the Finals with Virginia Commonwealth, the Citadel and Salisbury State going into the Consolation race. The climax of the morning races was the first Freshman race for the Regatta featuring the Citadel, Rollins and the University of Virginia. Virginia won this race in 6:43.5 over the 2000 meter course with Rollins second, 7:02.6 and the Citadel 7:37.0.

In the afternoon, Virginia Commonwealth won the Varsity consolation in 7:17.3. In the Junior Varsity Finals, Rollins took first in 6:46.6 edging the University of Virginia by two seconds. Following were Jacksonville, Virginia Commonwealth, Alabama, and East Carolina, in that order.

The Championship race developed into a three boat race between Rollins, the University of Virginia and East Carolina. Rollins jumped out to a slight lead at the start and held off all challenges. Rollins gradually pulled away from the field to finish first in 6:26.6 followed by Virginia in 6:32.4 and East Carolina in 6:35.6. Next in order followed Florida Southern in 6:46.4, Alabama in 6:50.6 and Jacksonville in 6:52.4.

The Association, meeting Friday evening, ratified the Constitution for S.I.R.A. The members also voted to hold its Third Annual Regatta in Charleston on Saturday, April 25, 1970. It was agreed that beginning with the Third Annual Regatta, four-oared competition would be included also with the eight-oared competition.

Washington-Lee High Wins The Stotesbury Cup

The Washington-Lee Generals of Arlington, Va. won the Stotesbury Cup in the 27th annual scholastic regatta on the Schuylkill River on May 17. The victory was one of three captured by Coach Charlie Butt's squad. The Generals also captured the four with coxswain race, and the third eights race.

Sculler Al Medioli was victorious in the singles race for the John B. Kelly Trophy. St. Andrews School of Middletown, Del. captured the junior eights while Francis Hammond of Alexandria, Va. was victorious in the junior fours.

The race for the Stotesbury Cup was a great battle between Washington-Lee and Roosevelt High School of Hyde Park, N.Y. The expected challenge from J.E.B. Stuart of Alexandria, Va., arch rival of the Generals and the defending champion, did not materialize until the very end of the race. Although Roosevelt did lead briefly early in the race, Washington-Lee stretched their lead to a full length at Peter's Island. The New Yorkers' closing sprint cut the margin at the line to $\frac{3}{4}$ of a length. Stuart just missed catching Roosevelt, trailing by only ten feet at the finish.

Ridley College Wins American Schoolboy Championship on Potomac

Ridley College High School from St. Catharines, Ont. won the American Schoolboy Championship on the Potomac River in Washington on May 24. They are the first Canadian crew to win this championship in the 35 year history of the event. In winning the exciting race, Ridley held off the challenge of J.E.B. Stuart High, the defending champions. Washington-Lee finished third, followed by Roosevelt (Hyde Park, N.Y.), Holy Spirit, and O'Hara of Springfield, Pa.

Stuart captured the lightweight championship, while Hammond repeated their four with coxswain victory of the week before in the Stotesbury regatta. St. Andrews edged Washington-Lee by a scant tenth of a second for the junior eights championship.

The Ridley College crew, coached by Neil Campbell, won an amazing victory in view of their background. This is only their third year of rowing, and because of the long Canadian winter, they had only been on the water for six weeks. They were the biggest crew in the finals, averaging 186 pounds per man, and displayed one of the most powerful crews physically to win the championship in recent memory.

J.E.B. Stuart Crew goes under Key Bridge in American Schoolboy Championships.

In a rare shutout, Washington-Lee's Generals failed to win a race, only the third time in 21 years. However, they made a strong showing with two seconds, three thirds and two fourths.

Princeton Edges N.Y.A.C. For Team Trophy in Memorial Day Regatta

by Andre R. Brousseau

By virtue of a one-two finish in the Senior Eight race by the Princeton "A" and "B" entries, Coach Pete Sparhawk's Tigers won the Ted Van Twisk Trophy by a 117-112 margin over the New York Athletic Club in the Memorial Day Regatta of the New York Rowing Association. Regatta Chairman Jack Sulger ably managed a fine program of twenty-eight events on the Orchard Beach Lagoon in the Bronx, N.Y.

In the Senior Single Scull race, Vesper's Paul Wilson defeated Bill Maher and Vesper teammate Bob Arlett. Wilson and Arlett then teamed up to win the double scull championship. Other winners included Rutgers in the Junior Eight, Princeton in the Senior Pair, Vesper in the four with coxswain senior race, N.Y.A.C. in the senior pair with coxswain, and Vesper in the straight four.

The races were run on fairly calm waters at wind speeds varying from zero to six miles per hour.

Western Open

John Van Blom, 21-year-old Cal State College Long Beach husky who outraced America's finest-ever single sculls field last summer to earn a place on the U.S. Olympic team, indicated May 31 that he's prepared to seek further national honors.

Van Blom, who rowed No. 5 in the Cal State Long Beach varsity eight during most of the collegiate season, repeated his victory of last July over fellow Long Beach Rowing Assn. oarsman Tom McKibbin in the feature race of the Western Open Rowing Championships at Long Beach Marine Stadium.

The event emphasized small boat competition over the 2000-meter Olympic course, and Van Blom's fine 7:27.9 under less than ideal conditions was good indication he's well underway in his training for the National Championships in August.

McKibbin was three quarters of a length back at 7:29.4.

The two teamed later in the morning for doubles, and recorded an outstanding 6:53.7...under unusual circumstances.

Although LBRA includes a number of good scullers, no team would step forward to challenge the international class duo. A San Diego Rowing Club team of Kearny Johnston and Dr. Hank Moll agreed to race...with a one minute handicap.

The San Diegoans thus were well down the course before Van Blom and McKibbin left the starting line off Long Beach Yacht Club. The L.B.R.A. team overtook Johnston and Moll at about the 1700 meter mark and went on to a shockingly easy win.

Van Blom and McKibbin will continue training through the summer at Marine Stadium under the coaching of Mario Katunarich, along with the association's other small boat specialists.

The Western Open concluded the West Coast regular season, with four universities and two club teams competing in boats purchased by the City of Long Beach last summer in anticipation of the Olympic Trials. A crowd of about 500 attended despite the dreary skies and brisk low 60's temperatures.

Two crews approach the Steward's Enclosure, nearing the finish of The Grand Challenge Cup (senior eight-oared competition) of the Henley Royal Regatta.

THE INTERNATIONAL SCENE

by Emory Clark

England's Henley Royal Regatta, to which several American schoolboy and college crews will doubtless be making their way is the oldest and certainly the most colorful regatta in the world.

Held this year the first week in July, the regatta was established at a public meeting in the Henley Town Hall in 1839 and has become a traditional English sporting occasion on a par with the Grand National Steeplechase and the Wimbledon Tennis Tournament.

More than 200 crews, the majority from English schools and rowing clubs, participate; and when all the Henley pubs are filled, oarsmen seeking a week's lodging (and beer) spill over into private homes and the surrounding villages. These oarsmen add to the festive air of Henley Week as they are eliminated from the regatta and seek to drown their sorrows (or increase their joys) with numerous pints of bitter.

At the race course itself, immaculate lawns, flowers freshly planted and neat blue and white striped tents set the tone for the spectators who, with the exception of an occasional American, are always enthusiastic (even the slowest crews receive a hearty "well rowed"), never rowdy, always proper.

Behind the grandstand, the band, perhaps the Royal Scots Guard, plays in subdued tones throughout the day, finishing after the last race with "God Save the Queen" while all stand.

Easily as much a social event as a sporting one, the old school tie, the double-breasted blazer and white flannels, perhaps yellowing with age, are the uniform of the day. While the ladies use the occasion to wear outrageous hats and the latest styles (for those with presentable knees — and alas a few without them — the mini-skirt has been very much in fashion).

And of course the various bars in the Steward's Enclosure are well attended with other oarsmen reminiscing on other races from other days, while races go by unnoticed a few yards away. For in keeping with its social character, the Henley Royal Regatta is very much a reunion where one is likely to meet a Dane one raced in Amsterdam, or a German remembered from Tokyo, or an Australian one drank beer with in Melbourne or even an American one rowed with in college.

Henley week begins officially the Saturday prior to the opening of the regatta with the drawing for positions in the Town Hall — names picked from the Grand Challenge Trophy while competitors sit, tense and quiet, to see whom they will face in their first race.

Because it is left entirely to chance, on more than one occasion what would perhaps have been a thrilling final takes place on the first day, and more than one oarsman has been seen heading for the nearest pub immediately following the draw.

On Sunday the traditional oarsmen's service is held in Henley chapel with all the crews sitting together in their proper school or club colors, while the archbishop ruminates on the speed with which the laurel crown, ancient prize for athletes, decays in this world of mortals. But he closes the service with a rousing hymn familiar to all, so that any pessimistic note lingering about the fruits of this life are dispelled by a thousand strong young voices which are doubtless heard in Wargrave, four miles up the Thames.

The actual competition, following some elimination races, starts the next Wednesday with races every five minutes, and continues until Saturday when the finals are run and the trophies awarded.

As at any such event many irrelevant people converge on the town who know nothing of rowing, but whose presence nevertheless is necessary to make Henley Week what it is.

Whole families arrive on Thames from London in houseboats. Gypsies park their caravans just down from the start, mingling with the other holiday makers for no apparently good reason. A carnival complete with ferris wheel, booths of chance and honky tonk music, sets up half a mile from the finish line in striking contrast to the Steward's Enclosure with its lovely ladies and uniformed band.

But, of course, The Henley Royal Regatta is more than just competition and color and the crowd and the carousing.

For an oarsman it is an early morning workout through a green English countryside along a Thames without a ripple — the sense of peace accentuated by the quiet shush of oars into the water and the unconcern of a cow munching her breakfast.

Or when the pubs have finally closed and the last exuberant soul has jumped from the bridge, Henley for the lad and his maid is the land turned silver by an obliging moon as the mists begin to rise in the meadows.

Allen Rosenberg, former Vesper Olympic Coach, in a contemplative mood in the Henley boat tents.

International Notes

by Emory Clark

Australia's 1968 Olympic entry, the New South Wales eight, was soundly beaten this spring in The King's Cup (Australia's Nationals), coming in second to a strong Victoria crew which covered the 2000 meter course at Bundberg, Queensland, in 5:58.

For the Australians the King's Cup result was sensational as the New South Wales boat contained six silver medalists from Mexico and was heavily favored over the Victorians who in winning gained a measure of revenge. The Victorian stern four, winners of the St. Catherines' international regatta in Canada in 1967, had also won their country's Olympic coxed four trials last year, but were not picked for the team by the selectors who considered them below Olympic standard. The King's Cup was described as a "boilover" with Victoria leading from the start and holding off all New South Wales challenges to win by a length.

Also at Bundaberg was Stuart MacKenzie, colorful former world champion sculler and onetime coach of Columbia University crews, who at 35 was apparently trying to regain his position as Australia's and the world's top sculler. MacKenzie narrowly won Australia's Diamond Sculls in Melbourne earlier in the year, a race before which he had downed a beer in front of the reviewing stand on his way to the starting line, but at Bundaberg, after leading for 1000 meters he was overtaken by three of his younger countrymen. An eyewitness reports MacKenzie, if a bit slower on the water, has lost none of his ability to make public statements.

1969 Olympic Development Program

by Ross Smith

The Executive Committee of the N.A.A.O. announced on May 7 a grant from the United States Olympic Committee for use in a rowing development program during the summer of 1969.

To implement this program, an Ad Hoc Committee was appointed. The committee consists of William J. Knecht, N.A.A.O. President as Chairman, Ross H. Smith, Director of Athletics at M.I.T. and a member of the United States Olympic Rowing Committee, and Ernest H. Bayer, treasurer of the N.A.A.O. and U.S. Olympic Rowing Committee member. President Knecht is a member of the Olympic Rowing Committee and the Olympic Board of Directors.

Nine established rowing clubs were selected to receive funds from this grant, with the intention that the 1969 program will be more broadly based than the Eastern and Western Development Clinics of 1968. Part of the grant from the Olympic Committee will cover per diem allowance in securing coaching assistance for the program.

The primary objective is to attract outstanding college oarsmen to one of the summer rowing programs at the clubs receiving the aid and sponsorship of the N.A.A.O. and the U.S. Olympic Rowing Committee. The rowing programs are to build toward the following events:

—The National Rowing Championships in Philadelphia August 15-17.

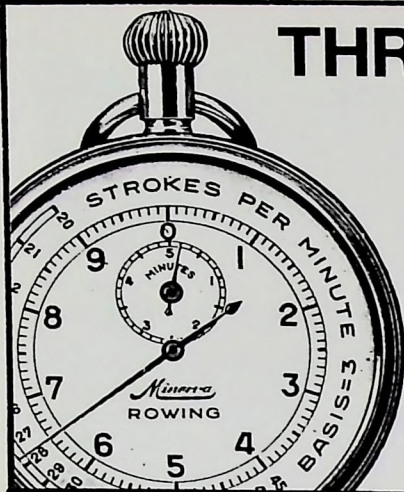

—The selection of a United States Rowing Squad in the seven Olympic events to compete at the European Rowing Championships in Klagenfurt, Austria, September 11-14, 1969.

The clubs and the officers of the organizations administering the programs locally are as follows:

The secondary objective is to attract outstanding coaches who are interested and available to any of the summer programs where coaching assistance is needed. This aspect of the program is being administered by Ross H. Smith, M.I.T. Branch Post Office, Box D, Cambridge, Mass. 02139.

We hope that this program is a step toward strengthening our representation in international competition, and also will contribute mightily to strengthening all of American rowing at the "grass roots" level. We invite the comments of all oarsmen to assist us in making a careful evaluation of this program.

III WORLD ROWING CHAMPIONSHIPS

by Craig Swayze

ST. CATHARINES, Ontario — For the past few years, some St. Catharines business firms have been marking their mail with a postage frank suggesting this Canadian city is the rowing capital of the world. It is, perhaps, something of an overstatement.

But while these community-minded companies may be a little premature, their prediction will come true next year when, for at least a couple of weeks, St. Catharines becomes the site of the III World Rowing Championships.

Nestled in the midst of the Niagara Peninsula's lush orchard lands a scant 10 miles from world-famous Niagara Falls and its thundering waters, St. Catharines was awarded the 1970 global sweep oar competition at last year's International Rowing Federal (FISA) Congress, held during the Olympic Games in Mexico City. The city and its famed Henley Course were unanimous choices for the championships by delegates representing 45 of the world's leading rowing nations.

And as a result, the elite of the world's oarsmen and scullers will gather at St. Catharines next year to row off for global titles with the actual racing dates now set as September 3, 4, 5 and 6, 1970.

The regatta Organizing Committee, under the general chairmanship of W. B. C. (Bill) Burgoyne, a St. Catharines newspaper publisher, has already established a whopping $448,000 budget for next year's championships. And while much of this money will come in the form of grants from the governments of Canada and the Province of Ontario as well as the City of St. Catharines, a $200,000 financial campaign is already under way to raise the remainder.

"Our budget provides for up to 568 athletes from 39 countries," Mr.

Burgoyne revealed recently. "Of course, we still have a potential of 750 oarsmen from 48 countries, but with the travel distances involved we feel the 500 figure is more realistic."

Under FISA rules, the Organizing Committee is required to pay a minimum of 20 percent of the fare and equipment freight costs of visiting crews. But in an attempt to assure themselves of a solid entry by the top European rowing nations, the St. Catharines people are offering one-third travel help to all.

Already, there is something more than ordinary interest by the world's rowing fraternity in coming to Canada next year. Several countries have indicated they will run charter flights to St. Catharines and hotel reservations are going fast. If nothing else, the overseas sweep oar buffs are making certain they have their accommodation and tickets well in advance of the event.

"Of course, our biggest problem is going to be to sell the regatta to North America," suggested Mr. Burgoyne. "Rowing isn't like baseball, football or hockey on this side of the water."

The unanimous choice of St. Catharines as the site for the III World Rowing Championships was mainly the result of two things. The first was the highly-successful North American Rowing Championships staged in the Canadian city two years ago and the

Committeemen Active In Communications Field

Two men prominent in the communications media hold key positions in the Organizing Committee for the III World Rowing Championships, to be held September 3 - 6, 1970, on the famed Henley Course at St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada.

W. B. C. (Bill) Burgoyne, publisher of the St. Catharines Standard, is general chairman for the world regatta while R. M. (Bob) Schmon, president of the Ontario Paper Co. and the North Shore Paper Co., subsidiaries of the Chicago Tribune newspaper enterprises, is financial chairman.

F. F. (Ted) Nelson, a past president of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, is course chairman while John H. Newman, past president of the Henley Aquatic Association, is facilities chairman. Craig Swayze, the CAAO publicity director and foreign press convener for rowing at the Mexico Olympics, is regatta chairman.

Col. Fred Collins, who so successfully handled many of the details for the North American Rowing Championships in 1967, is back as regatta general manager. W. T. (Bill) Rodda is the chairman of public relations with H. H. (Bud) Lancaster regatta secretary and Mayor Mackenzie Chown of St. Catharines the treasurer.

III WORLD ROWING

second was the fact that the historic Henley Course is the only FISA Class A international rowing course in North America.

In 1967, as part of Canada's Centennial celebrations, the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen put on the North Americans for the first FISA continental championship regatta ever held on this side of the Atlantic. It attracted some 250 oarsmen from 19 rowing nations and put St. Catharines on the world's rowing map.

But in preparation for this event, the rowing people in St. Catharines spent almost $2,000,000 revamping the Henley Course, site of every major Canadian rowing regatta since 1903 and known to most United States oarsmen and scullers as the home of each summer's Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, a four-day championship boasting 44 finals and often referred to as the oarsmen's regatta. It was enough to turn the silt-laden waterway — once part of the old Welland Canal system — into one of the world's finest racing lanes.

The 2500-meter straight-away now boasts permanent adjustable starting gates, underwater Albano-type buoying for six lanes, steel timing towers and overhead lane markers every 500 meters, huge new shell-houses on an oarsmen's complex at the 1000-meter mark, a finish tower, electronic timing equipment, a covered cement grandstand, a press stand and many of the other refinements required under FISA rules.

Needless to say though, a federal government dredging project was the key to the entire remedial program on the course. And it now boasts a minimum 100-foot depth from start to finish with adequate water control so that the regatta organizers will be able to create dead water for both the training and racing period in 1970.

"But we're planning even more work around the course before next summer," reveals F. F. (Ted) Nelson, the man behind the 15-year remedial program which has turned the waterway into a FISA Class A racing site. "We hope to have a regatta second to none in 1970."

Held every four years, the first World Rowing Championships was staged in 1962 at Lucerne, Switzerland. The second was rowed at Bled, Yugoslavia, in 1966. But next year's regatta will be the first to leave Europe.

Already, St. Catharines is girding itself for the festivities and this city of 100,000 persons is determined to put on a show for the competitors, officials and spectators. A huge organization is already hard at work planning for 1970 and a permanent regatta office is operating.

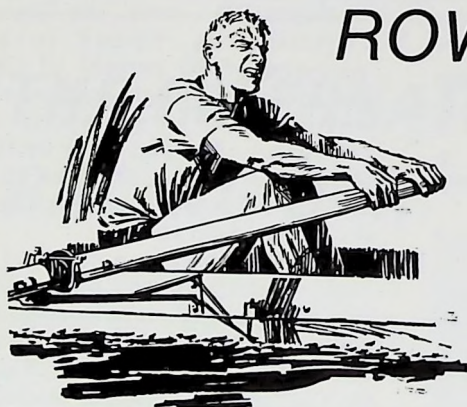

"We aren't going to be caught napping," was the way Col. Fred Collins, the regatta general manager, put it. "FISA and the world of rowing expect us to be ready for them. We will be."

WHAT AN ALUMNI ASSOCIATION CAN OFFER

Any active group of rowing alumni may have asked the question: "What more can we do to help the rowing game?" Replies to this question might involve action only at the level of a local college or prep school program. What about the broader aspects of helping crewmen everywhere?

This brief account of the "S.A.R.A. story" is presented in the spirit of ideas for building morale and promoting rowing in college, club, town and country.

by

Bruce E. Chamberlain, M.D.

Editor's Note: Bruce Chamberlain, one of the most prominent physicians in Central New York, has devoted many years to rowing at Syracuse. He is one of the founders and current President of the Syracuse Regatta Association.

The Origin of the Syracuse Alumni Rowing Association

The Intercollegiate Rowing Association Regatta had already come to its new home, Onondaga Lake, Syracuse, N.Y. Two successful years had passed under sponsorship of a local band of enthusiastic business men (the Syracuse Regatta Association). This local community activity was sufficient stimulus to two loyal Syracuse University crew alumni to foster the initial thrust to organize other alumni in the area. Although the objectives at first were focused on aid to the college sport locally, the program soon became much broader. By 1955 the Founders group adopted a Constitution and formalized the Association. Membership soon expanded to include "old rowing greats" of Syracuse and many alumni and members of other colleges and clubs.

The original Executive Committee of 7 members, who conducted the principal projects was extended to a 15 man Board of Directors when S.A.R.A. became incorporated in 1967. All major actions and elections are processed by the Annual Meeting of the membership each June on Regatta

S.A.R.A. supports rowing in Syracuse through donation of equipment and shells. Here a new eight is christened.

Day. Our source of financial support is derived from membership dues and contributions from members and friends.

What we do for the organization:

Over these years fifteen volumes of "Rowing News Bulletins" have been edited. Each regular bulletin relates news of rowing in the U.S.A. and the world, as well as local and S.A.R.A. events. Regatta schedules are published in season. Feature articles of general interest are used and of considerable value is the "Personals" column.

From time to time a revised Membership Directory is distributed to all members which assist communication of members in specific geographic areas. Each year on Regatta (IRA) Day a Reunion Luncheon follows the annual business meeting. A reunion luncheon has been sponsored annually at the Eastern Sprint Regatta.

What is done for the University Program and Syracuse Crews must be considered of importance also to S.A.R.A.

In 1963 "Mark of the Oarsmen" was published by the organization following eight years of research and review of numerous personal memoirs and manuscripts. The book is a narrative history of Syracuse rowing but includes much of the glamour of IRA Regatta history. Distribution has extended to the libraries of many colleges and cities in the country. It stands as a valuable contribution among the few books written on American Rowing.

An Endowed Scholarship Fund has been established with Syracuse University in the interest of financial aid to Syracuse crewmen. Proceeds from sale of "Mark of the Oarsmen" were contributed to this Fund.

ROWING ALUMNI

has been promoted by the organization and its members individually. Of note was the donation of the Packard Trophy by S.A.R.A. member, Dr. A. T. Ladd, honoring Dr. Edward N. Packard, first victorious Syracuse Varsity IRA stroke oar. This trophy inaugurated the annual Regatta between Syracuse and Dartmouth. Two unique features include the individual awards to members of the winning crew and open invitation to other competitors in this regatta who become just as eligible to win the trophy.

S.A.R.A. supports a mid winter reunion of local alumni and members with undergraduate crews of Syracuse. Among the speakers featured in past years have been Al Rosenberg, Tony Johnson, Vic Michalson and Bill Stowe. Awards are presented by S.A.R.A. to winners of the Autumn Intersquad Races.

Ten years ago the Senior Blanket Award was instituted for crewmen graduating from Syracuse after four successive years of rowing. Each blanket bears a large block letter with indication of the individual's participation in major competition.

What further outreach does S.A.R.A. have?

S.A.R.A. maintains an active organizational membership in the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen. Our representative and delegate, Dr. Thomas Kerr, is Vice President of N.A.A.O., currently. In addition, we are well represented among other members of its Executive Committee.

Crews of Syracuse (off season) have been sponsored under S.A.R.A. for competition in National N.A.A.O. Regattas: Memorial Day, Head of the Charles, American Henley, 1960 Olympic Trials, etc. Through the registration as competing members in N.A.A.O. these crewmen become better informed about the National organization.

Token contributions of support have been given to the National Rowing Foundation, Friends of Pennsylvania Rowing, and the U.S. Olympic Rowing Fund. Most recently S.A.R.A. members have shared with Syracuse Regatta Association the financial responsibility of new docks at the launching site of IRA crews.

Finally, whether the implications of the newest project reach out or remain local will be proven only in time. S.A.R.A. is spearheading initial steps for a Boat Club to foster High School Rowing in Onondaga County. After property acquisition and completion of plans for a building, the proposition will be presented to the new organization.

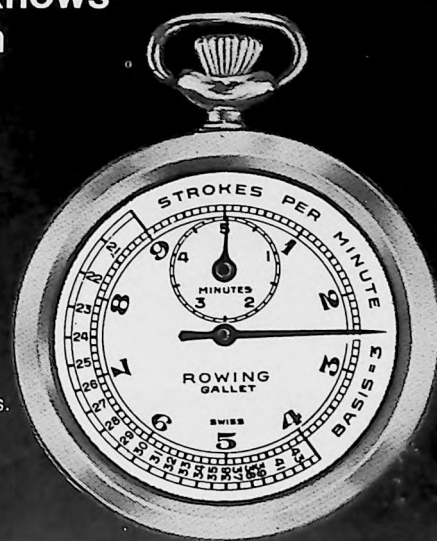

And we still ask the question: What more can we do for Rowing? What more can you do?

THAN AT ANY OTHER CLUB

Nearly 30 collegiate oarsmen rowed through a successful summer season at Ecorse in 1968—from big schools and small; heavyweights and 150's; varsity veterans and freshmen greenhorns; from all over the country, some as far away as California.

They counted the National Intermediate 8-oared title among their numerous '68 successes.

ECORSE B.C. guarantees summertime employment in metropolitan Detroit's varied industries, also aids in finding good housing.

Oh Say Can You See My HAIR?

Collegiate oarsmen were not exempt from the recent outbreak of beards, mustaches, sideburns and long hair that swept campuses across the nation. Pictured are a few examples of rowers who have joined the Pepsi (?) Generation and spawned facial protein patches.

Is it attractive? That's a matter of individual taste. It is, however, the current fad, the "in" look, that will probably be around for a while. It's the Age of Aquarius, and who dares to knock it?

BOAT INSURANCE

Want to take advantage of group rates in insuring your racing shell? Most of the individuals, clubs, colleges and high schools in the Philadelphia area insure their equipment for fire, theft, collision, travel hazards, etc. under the Schuylkill Navy group policy for about half the normal rate. If you or your organization is located within a 150 mile radius of Philadelphia, you can qualify for acceptance under this plan. Contact:

Announcing...

at Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio

Established by Mrs. James H. Hughes of New York City in memory of her late husband, the James H. Hughes Memorial Trophy consists of this permanent silver loving cup, tooled and engraved with the words: "James H. Hughes Memorial Trophy, To The Outstanding Oarsman, Marietta College, Annual Competition." The silver pedestal plate is inscribed: "Presented by Mrs. James H. Hughes In Loving Memory Of Her Husband." Recipients' names will be engraved on the plate and each will receive a silver individual Hughes Bowl.

This award represents the desire of Mrs. Hughes to honor the memory of her late husband, a former oarsman whose lifelong devotion to the sport is commemorated in the following regattas and awards:

Date Est.	Event Or Competition	Place Rowed Or Awarded	Award Name

CALIFORNIA STATE COLLEGE, LONG BEACH

Long Beach State won 4 of 7 races for Coach Bill Lockyer in 1969 prior to the Western Sprints, where they finished 5th. They defeated St. Mary's, Oregon University and Irvine in dual races and won the L.A. Harbor Regatta over San Diego State, U.S.C. and California. They bowed to Oregon State and U.C.L.A. and ran 3rd in the Newport Regatta.

CALIFORNIA STATE, LONG BEACH 150 LB. VARSITY

The Long Beach State 150s were undefeated in six starts, climaxed by ending Oregon State's reign as lightweight kings of the Western Sprints. Numbered among their victims were Santa Clara, Oregon State, Seattle, San Diego State, Santa Clara, Santa Barbara, Cal-San Diego and St. Mary's.

CORNELL UNIVERSITY 150 LB. VARSITY

The Cornell Lightweights slipped a bit from their standard of recent years. They won 2 of 4 matches, losing to M.I.T. and arch-foe Cornell, while defeating Princeton, Columbia and Dartmouth. For the first time in many years the Cornell 150s failed to qualify for the Eastern Sprint Finals. They did win the consolation race, however.

EAST CAROLINA UNIVERSITY

East Carolina won 6 of 9 dual meets; over Tampa, Alabama, Jacksonville, Howard and The Citadel twice. They lost to Rollins, Florida Southern and Virginia. E.C.U. was 2nd to Villanova in the Grimaldi Cup, 3rd in the 9 boat Southern Rowing Association Championships and ran 6th in the big Dad Vail finals.

This crew was best in St. Joe's history posting a 5 and 1 mark including victories in Presidents Cup, Bergen Cup and Washington, D.C. area championships. Only loss was an upset 2nd place finish behind Georgetown in the Dad Vail championships.

PACIFIC LUTHERAN UNIVERSITY VARSITY Tacoma, Washington

P.L.U. won only one of seven starts in 1969, but it was a big one, an upset win over arch-rival Puget Sound which had finished ahead of them four times earlier in the season. Other high points were 3rd place finishes in the Seattle U. Invitational, Corvallis Invitational and Vancouver Invitational, all multi-crew regattas.

Pacific Lutheran
1969 Varsity Crew,
l. to r.: Norm
Purvis; Jeff Dreyer;
Joe Evans; Gary
VanHoy; Conrad
Hunziker; Malcolm
Klug; Jim Ojala; Jim
Puttler; Ralph Nell

Runnerup in the Mid-America Collegiate Rowing Association behind Marletta College at Topeka, Kansas on May 3.

RIDLEY COLLEGE St. Catharines, Ontario

Husky Youngsters from a private school at St. Catharines, in only its 3rd year of rowing, became the first Canadian school to ever win the U.S. National Scholastic 8-oared Crown, when they edged defending champion J.E.B. Stuart and Washington-Lee High in a close one at Washington, D.C.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA Los Angeles, California

Coach Bob Hillen's Southern Cal Trojans won 2 of 6 matches leading up to the Western Sprints. They routed Santa Barbara and just edged Cal-San Diego, but lost to Cal-Berkeley and ran 3rd in the Harback Cup behind U.C.L.A. and Stanford, before placing 12th at the Sprints.

VIRGINIA COMMONWEALTH UNIVERSITY

In its 3rd year of rowing the U.V.C. varsity won one of six starts (over Washington College and Salisbury State), but they lost to home state rival Univ. of Virginia. They were 7th in Southern Rowing Association Championships and 5th in Washington, D.C. Regatta. They did not qualify at the Dad Vail.

Virginia Commonwealth 1969 Varsity Crew.

Organization of a Rowing Program

(First in a series of articles offered by the N.A.A.O. Development Committee)

by Dr. Oliver Brundage, M.D.

The purpose of this presentation and subsequent articles is to assist those individuals in communities, schools, and colleges who wish to initiate a rowing program. Although the amateur sport of rowing has considerable heritage in the northeast, northern midwest and west coast, it is just developing in the southeast and midwest and is virtually unknown in the greater part of our country. In those areas where the sport is flourishing and where competitive programs have existed for many years, there should be few obstacles encountered in establishing "new units," therefore, the main context of this and subsequent presentations will be directed mainly to development in "undeveloped" areas. It is hoped that newly forming organizations, even in developed areas, will find some helpful suggestions.

So, let us begin at the very beginning and construct, step by step, a club, school, or college program, in an area of our country where rowing is unheard of, an area where the local populace do not know a shell from a canoe. An area that possesses only one inducement — water.

Step 1: Purpose — it is not difficult to dream of or to actually formulate a program, but the program must have some beneficial purpose to serve as inducement in gaining the support of community, school, or college. Probably the best inducement at community level is to present the establishment of a rowing club as a men's athletic club, that absorbs for continuing competitive physical training, youth and college oarsmen through the summer months; post graduate ex-college oarsmen year round until late 20's and thereafter for as long as they desire a physical exercise program commensurate with their desire and agility. There is considerable credence in this reasoning, in that most communities in our country have few "team effort" competitive sporting programs to offer to a young man who does not go on to college, or past college is assigned to a local industry.

The "rowing club" serves as a nidus for formulating a "schoolboy" rowing program in the community, and this is not only a fact, but a necessity. By concomitantly establishing both programs, the club in an undeveloped area is over a period of years assuring itself of a constant influx and return of oarsmen, not only for youth programs, but also during summers from college for N.A.A.O. competition. To initiate a schoolboy or high school rowing program, one must first realize that there are two separate and distinct school systems in our country; public and parochial. Lucky is the community that has both. The parochial high school athletic program is supported financially, in the main, by the "boosters club" composed of fathers of students and ardent supporters and who are responsible to the school principal and to the Diocese representative in charge of state Catholic high school athletic activities. They are a very progressive group and this is borne out in fact if one reviews in the N.A.A.O. Guide, the "Schools Participating in Rowing" and notes the large number of Catholic high schools rowing. So, if one has a choice, start first by inducing the local Catholic high school into the program.

Inducing the public school is another "kettle of fish." State high school sports and band activities are under the jurisdiction of the "State High School Athletic Commission"

Editor's Note: Dr. Oliver Brundage has been named chairman of the N.A.A.O. Development Committee, and he offers this article as the first of a series in the name of this committee. Dr. Brundage is well versed in his subject, having been closely involved with the birth of rowing in the Parkersburg, W. Va. area.

which maintains an office, not necessarily in the capital city, presided over by an Executive Secretary. The "Commission" publishes a booklet outlining restrictions on all sports such as miles allowable for travel to compete, disqualification to participate for national championship, etc. The "Commission" is composed of all the high school principals who meet once a year to discuss the rules and regulations and vote upon any proposed changes. All state "Commissions," with the exception of one, are bonded together in a national organization with executive secretarial offices in Chicago. To have rowing approved as a "high school sport" in an undeveloped area you must have the approval of the "Executive Secretary of the State High School Athletic Commission." Then, and only then, can you approach the "Athletic Director" of a local high school. He will probably tell you that the funds derived from football and basketball cannot support a rowing program and you will request a trial basis as a school club function at no expense to the school. And then to whom do you turn to support the program financially — the Shriners, of course. There

Rest Interval Plays Important Part In Training Program Of Every Rower

by Allen Rosenberg

Within the past few months, I have been fortunate to have visited and spoken with a great number of oarsmen and their coaches at various training sites from the east coast to the mid-west. Invariably we drift into the respective level of performance and the inevitable evaluation of speed based upon the now popular 500 meter distance. Since the late 1950's, this approximate distance in varying repetitions has become one measure for the oarsman for approximating his optimum speed for the racing tempo and distance. While this number of repetitions varies markedly due to the fact that the all-out work effort is conducted in sets or intervals, many people have come to adopt the 500 meter*time as "the interval time." But looking at this method more critically, we must appreciate that little appreciation and virtually no uniformity exists as to the most critical aspect of this training, which is the rest interval rather than the work interval.

As one rule of thumb, the most effective way of promoting the recovery between work intervals is to maintain rowing movement, regardless of the time or distance covered. In recent discussions with Fred Wilt, one of the most knowledgeable track and field experts in the world today, he emphasized to me that work efficiency is improved and recovery facilitated when complete rest is avoided between work intervals. In track, easy jogging as opposed to standing still is recommended.

While the oarsman's choice, if it is given to him, is likely to be one of lack of motion immediately after an all out sprint, it is suggested that an absolute break in movement is to be avoided. First, lack of movement breaks up the rhythm of rowing and probably leads indirectly to poor slide control, inaccurate timing and lack of application of power. Second, because of the importance of the interval from work to rest as a factor in recovery, even the slightest movement will resist the too rapid and unwanted drop in pulse rate, with a pooling of blood and clogging of tissue fluids.

As a still further embodiment of the constant movement between repetitions, it is believed physiologically essential to maintain the recovery well after the last work interval by a rather prolonged warming-down period.

The question often asked of how many work intervals should be performed is dependent upon the goals to be achieved in that particular work-out as it bears a relationship with the overall training regime leading to the competitive effort of the race. Consequently, the oarsman and/or his coach must pre-determine the intensity of the work from day to day and the work-rest intervals and their number must all be within the physically and mentally tolerable scheme. Wilt, one-time Sullivan award winner and one of the country's greatest distance runners, believes that the failure to gradually increase the intensity of the workout actually destroys the body's resistance to the stress of running. And so, it seems, that in his anxiety to determine an accurate gauge of potential speed too early in the season, the oarsman actually tends to destroy this potential by depending heavily upon the work interval and disregarding the rest interval and even more importantly, disregards the painstaking gradualness needed for optimum speed.

ROWING PROGRAM

is one other small problem. In all probability the Rowing Club will have to "coach the coaches." The parochial school can elicit the support of anyone, in or out of the school system, but the rowing coach for the public school must be a teacher in that school or at least in the public school system.

Wise is the developing club that initially allows the local high school or schools to use their physical housing facilities at no cost. The club is also wise to demand that the schools purchase their own equipment but also to assist them in their fund raising efforts.

The college or university enters a rowing program with less reluctance. To the Board of Directors, a rowing program not only broadens the overall athletic program, but particularly for small colleges, the sport seems to be a "status symbol." And for good reason. The very nature of the sport allows a relatively small, obscure college to compete with their much larger and better publicized neighbor as equals.

The idea of developing a rowing program invariably is sparked and directed by one, seldom more than a few persons, who usually are ex-schoolboy, college or club oarsmen and who desire to develop facilities so that they themselves can continue participation in the sport or they wish to take part in the development of the program as a community project. Once the idea has been born — Purpose and Inducement must be carefully evaluated and investigated before any commitments are made. If the establishment of a program seems feasible, the next step is a thorough survey of possible rowing sites, which we shall discuss in the next installment.

Veterans Vie In New Zealand Nationals

by John Hutton, Jr.

The Championship 8-oared final of the New Zealand Rowing Championships matched two outstanding boat loads of top ranked veterans New Zealand internationals. Wellington R.C. pulled a mild upset when they blazed over the fast course and whipped Auckland's defending title-holders, a crew heavily studded with 1968 Olympic Stalwarts.

Graeme Shaw, a member of the New Zealand crew that raced at Philadelphia and bled in 1966, paced the convincing winners, who led by a half length at 1,000 meters and opened water at the finish, despite the best efforts of New Zealand's most celebrated stroke oar, Alan Webster, in the No. 8 seat of the Auckland Boat. Webster had stroked the New Zealand Eight at both the Mexico and Tokyo olympics, as well as the All-Blacks' 1967 North American F.I.S.A. and U.S. National 8-oared victors. But on this day he and his touted Olympic crewmates were no match for the revenge minded men from Wellington, who they had edged a year earlier for the New Zealand title. The winning Wellington boat included two other men familiar to U.S. rowing from their successful 1967 North American Tour; John Hunter and Peter Delaney.

Olympians Wybo Veldman and Warren Cole, also North American Veterans from Whakatane R. C., the latter also an Olympic Gold Medalist, repeated their 1968 victories in both the coxed and straight pairs, but not with the ease that they enjoyed last year. Christchurch Union pressed them closely in both finals. For both Veldman and Cole it was their 5th and 6th Red Coats (emblematic of a New Zealand national title) in the past four years.

Their Whakatane clubmates in the championship 4-oared event did not fare as well and were routed by a powerful Hutt Valley Quartet, which included 1968 Olympic Cox 4 Gold Medalists Dick Joyce and Charles Collinge. A whistling tailwind pushed them to a fantastic, unrealistic 5:52 clocking!

New Zealand's Premiere Sculler, Murray Wilkinson of West End duplicated his 1968 performance and captured his 9th and 10th Red Coats with a two length victory over Hawks Bay's Tony Bone and then a repeat victory with his brother Peter in the double sculls.

Waikato R. C. captured the Centennial Oar signifying the Regatta Point Championship; their total built in large part by winning efforts in both the Junior 8 and 4.

Rowing is an immensely more popular sport in New Zealand than in the U.S. and is currently enjoying an "explosion" of interest due to the New Zealand international successes over the past two years. Thousands witnessed the five day regatta, which drew a record entry of over 1000 oarsmen; 415 crews from 42 clubs. So many heats were necessary that 52 races were run on the first two days and racing had to start as early as 6:30 A.M.!! Forty-six crews were entered in both the novice and maiden fours, 31 maiden singles and 22 maiden eights. There are 22 separate events contested in this huge regatta, which includes one light-weight race (coxed 4), a Women's 4-oared race and a Youth 8-oared event.

NOTES FROM THE I.R.A.

The 1969 I.R.A. Regatta was one of the most varied and interesting ever. It included the first dead heat in 67 years of I.R.A. racing, a stunning runnerup performance by Pete Gardiner's unheralded Dartmouth varsity and the first win ever for Rutgers in any I.R.A. event; in the Varsity Fours.

A thought in passing: Penn is just as fast as ever, but the competition across the board in all three 8-oared events is getting significantly stronger. Penn may well stay at the top for some years to come, especially in view of their continually amazing Frosh boats, but it appears that it will be increasingly difficult for them. "The League is catching up!"

The 3-day, 2000 meter, recharge format, initiated last year is increasingly popular, as is the new 4-oared event, which also started last year. This 4-oared race continues, as predicted, to draw increasing numbers of entries from smaller rowing powers, that would seldom or never venture an entry in the "Big League" 8-oared championships. The '69 I.R.A. set a new record of 24 schools; 58 crews, including 18 fours. Among the newcomers; Amherst, Cal State - Long Beach, Purdue, Virginia and Oregon State. And while none of them made the finals, Loyola did win the Petite (consolation) Finals and Purdue did win the 3rd level finals with a rousing closing sprint, that carried them from 5th place to an open water, going away rout over Navy, Dartmouth and M.I.T.; the exact opposite of their recharge finish, when they fell apart completely, after leading for 1500 m. The difference in no small part due to a reduction in their work load; suggested by Al Rosenberg.

Washington's valiant closing bid, which caught heavily favored Penn in the Frosh final for an unprecedented dead heat was one of the great closing rushes in I.R.A. history. It must have been especially gratifying to popular Lou Gellerman. A year ago illness forced his resignation as Varsity boss at Navy. Returning home to Seattle he turned up this year, well again, coaching the Frosh for his old crewmate, Dick Ericksen, at their alma mater. The season was capped with this blazing finish line dash, which overcame an open water Penn lead at 1000 meters.

The tie was no doubt bitterly disappointing to Ted Nash and his favorites, at least at first. They had had an agonizing wait on the water in front of the grandstand, while the judges viewed the stop-action, TV tape over and over before ruling the two boats dead even. Penn was gracious but perhaps a bit stunned. As time passes their pride in this race will undoubtedly grow. And as Joe Burk observed, "A dead heat sure is a heck of a lot better than losing."

THE QUAKER "MEAT FACTORY"

These are freshmen?!? 18 - 19 year old boys!?? Take a good look at the "engine room" of the undefeated I.R.A. champion Penn frosh 8 pictured on this page. But as impressive as they are, they are just typical of the eager, giant young monsters that Ted Nash keeps attracting to Philadelphia.

His Quaker cubs have not lost a collegiate race in four straight seasons, a record only very slightly tarnished by the great dead heat finish with a fine and equally large Washington crew this year at the I.R.A. From the left in the picture: No. 7 Blair Meyer, Jr., 6'4½", 200 lbs. (London, England); No. 6 Hugh Stevenson, Capt., 6'3½", 195 lbs. (New York City); No. 5 Bill Fairback, 6'6", 205 lbs. (Bethlehem, Pa.); No. 4 Barry Pierce, 6'2½", 210 lbs. (Belleville, N.J.); No. 3 Dave Knott, 6'4½", 194 lbs. (Bremerton, Wash.). These are freshmen?? Wait until they grow up!

ERRATA

Every new magazine goes through birth pains and The Oarsman is no exception. The staff is characterized more by enthusiasm than skill at this point, and we therefore apologize for errors that appeared in the May Issue.

On page 11 of that issue, the captions underneath the photos of Coach Tony Johnson and Coach Norm Graf should have been interchanged. No insult was intended to Norm.

The Middle States Regatta is on Sunday, September 7, 1969. Our apologies to the Middle States Regatta Associations.

That is a picture of Emory Clark on page 15 and he does often look that way in real life.

The 67th American Henley Regatta announcement appeared in the guise of the Amtreacan Henley, and for this we also apologize.

There were other small errors but maybe you didn't read closely enough to notice them.

20 years ago. Eight of the sixteen I.R.A. varsity crews averaged over 190 lbs.; among them Princeton and Cornell at 193 lbs.; runnerup Dartmouth at 194 lbs.; Georgetown at 190 lbs. and Washington at 199 lbs. The champion Penn Quakers listed at 195 lbs. But the biggest monsters of all hailed from the northlands of Wisconsin, where they really grow them big! Their fourth place varsity registered at 205 lbs. and their second place Jayvees at 200 lbs. even!

The winning Penn frosh checked in at 197 lbs., biggest among the yearling crews! They listed on the average at 10 lbs. heavier than the Washington frosh, but when standing side by side at the victory presentations the Huskies appeared to be every bit as big, if not bigger, than Penn.

Penn had the tallest varsity, at 6'4", a height matched by their own frosh, the Northeastern frosh and Cornell JV. Columbia had the shortest varsity at 6'1".

Stanford was easily the smallest varsity crew at 179 lbs. Lightest boat in the entire regatta was the Dartmouth JV at 177 lbs. Other "lightweight" varsity crews were Navy and Columbia 185 lbs.; U.C.L.A., Syracuse and Brown at 188 lbs. Not too long ago crews of that size would have been regarded as big!

Of course these "program weights" tend to be a bit inflated. But according to the program listings the heaviest man was Matt Saczawa, a 215 lb. junior from Wethersfield, Conn., who rowed No. 7 for Columbia, a considerable surprise in the otherwise relatively small Columbia crew. Wisconsin listed four men at 210 lbs. in their huge varsity, possibly an early season inflated size!?

Tallest man was Cornell's No. 6 man, Mike Staines, a sophomore, at 6'6". He hails from Brighton, England.

With all this emphasis on giants, note must be taken of the smallest oarsman in the regatta, Peter Washburn, the gummy little stroke of Gary MacLachlan's Syracuse frosh. He is listed at just 155 lbs. and actually checked in at only 145 lbs!!! He is the son of Davis Washburn, Coach at St. Andrew's School in Delaware. Pete kept his strong Orange crew in the thick of things most of the way, finishing fourth, just two lengths behind Penn and Washington, which were stroked by "boys" weighing in at 205 lbs. and 210 lbs. respectively!

The crowd of 18,000 on the day of the finals was the largest since the I.R.A. moved to Onondoga Lake 18 years ago.

Biggest disappointment of this I.R.A.; Princeton's failure to make the varsity final. Biggest surprise; Dartmouth making the final and finishing second!

A NICE TRY AT TOLEDO

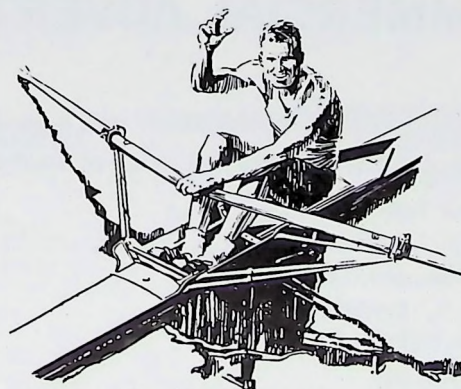

Jack Sulger, the N.Y.A.C. "major domo" and past president of the N.A.A.O. was on loan from the New York City Police Department this spring to the Toledo Metropolitan Government. Jack is of course a regular rowing "Johnny Appleseed" and he immediately set out to try to plant rowing in this Ohio city, where the sport is unknown, but which is only 60 expressway miles from the rowing activities in Detroit. An organization meeting in May aboard the 45' houseboat of former N.A.A.O. Exec. Committee member Bill Kreger at Wyandotte, Mich., resulted in the formation of a committee with the highfalutin moniker of The Task Force on Physical Education, with the announced purpose of establishing a rowing program in the Toledo Police Department. Federal monies are available and generally lying neglected, unnoticed and unused for programs of this sort.

Representatives of the Detroit, Ecorse and Wyandotte Boat Clubs met with and pledged their support to Sulger and three Toledo representatives; Rod McElroy, a former Harvard lightweight oarsman (from the championship crews of the late 1950s); Frank Salyards of the Toledo Jaycees and Mike Dunn of the Toledo Police Dept.

Sulger had expected his assignment to Toledo to last all summer. But his program there terminated prematurely and

Jack has returned to N.Y.C. Without him as the outside "catalyst" to get the ball rolling, the whole deal seems to be foundering. A regatta that had been scheduled in Toledo in mid-June between Detroit area and N.Y. crews has been canceled and an imaginative idea seems to be dying before it could get fairly started.

NEW REGATTA AT PITTSBURGH

After the Toledo effort, Sulger however, in typical fashion, had another iron in the fire almost immediately; a new regatta in Pittsburgh, Pa.! Last year the busy Mr. Sulger had arranged one race between his N.Y.A.C. senior eight and the big Vesper B.C. crew as a feature of the Triad Water Festival at Pittsburgh. This year he managed to get this expanded into a full-fledged 2-day regatta on June 14-15. The first real rowing regatta in Pittsburgh in over 30 years.

Triad is an annual multi-event 3-day river front celebration in Pittsburgh run by the Three River Improvement and Development Co., a civic enterprise, which has promoted the renovation of the local waterfront.

Five rowing clubs were invited to participate and all enjoyed a delightful and rare bonanza in that all of their expenses, including air fare and hotels, were completely covered by the local sponsors!!

Besides rowing other Triad events include power boat races, Navy sky divers, beauty contests, etc. The course was laid out right in the center of downtown Pittsburgh at Point State Park on the old Golden Triangle, where the confluence of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers form the Ohio River. Unfortunately poor weather put a crimp in things. High winds and on the second day, a day long rain, whipped up the river and on that second day regrettably forced the cancellation of all but the featured 8-oared event. 800 meter sprint races were contested on Saturday and 2000 meters were scheduled for Sunday. Despite the poor weather a fairly large crowd was attracted.

In the sprint races on Saturday, Jack Galloway's Penn

A.C. eight was the winner closely pressed by Buffalo West Side, Ecorse, New York A.C. and Detroit. New York's Jim Dietz shipped Fairmont's veteran Frank Robinson in the heavy single, while Detroit's rugged Al Baur routed Bob Burkhart of Ecorse in the 150 lb. single. New York captured the double sculls; Quinn and McKenna over Detroit's bigger Marentette and Doelle. Detroit had a row-over in the coxed pair with a couple of giant oversized veterans, John Simpkins and Roy Karabacz. Both were members of Detroit's big 1963 National Champ eight. They are attempting a return to competition this year for the first time since the '64 Trials.

On Sunday, in the wind lashed 2000 meter 8-oared race, there was a complete reversal of the order of finish, in part due perhaps to the severe cross winds and protected lanes enjoyed by some crews. Sulger's crew won in a slow 7:30, the 3rd victory for the New York entries. They were pressed by Penn A.C. with Jud Ross' Detroiters 3rd, followed by Ecorse and Buffalo.

WE WANT YOUR OPINION!

Well now, after two issues of The Oarsman, what do you, our readers, think of our new N.A.A.O. magazine format, which has succeeded the old Rowing News? The Publications Committee feels certain that the visual appearance is much improved. We know for sure that our enlarged and improved staff and procedures, under the direction of Andy Geiger, ensure much quicker, more timely publication dates!

We trust that our new editorial policies and content meet with your approval; less emphasis on regatta race results, more concentration of technical and background material.

How do you feel about the demise of the old Rowing Guide yearbook? Much of that material is now included in different issues of The Oarsman.

Let us know what you like and don't like, what we may have omitted, what you want. We want to hear from you and we do promise continued improvement in our new N.A.A.O. magazine.

P.S., did you notice the very striking cover on issue No. 1 of The Oarsman in May — including the orange color. This just happens to be the school color of Syracuse, where our new editor, Andy Geiger is the Assistant Athletic Director. So why not orange!
