THOMAS EAKINS
(1844-1916)

It was 135 years ago, in 1874, that Thomas Eakins completed his series of five paintings and numerous sketches and studies of rowing and sculling on the Schuylkill River.

While his world-wide reputation as one of America's greatest painters is based primarily on his incisive and revealing portraits of upper middle class Philadelphians and on two monumental medical paintings, The Gross Clinic and The Agnew Clinic, to oarsmen and all admirers of the placid beauty of the Schuylkill as it winds through Fairmount Park, it is the rowing pictures that are the most appealing.

Eakins himself was a superb oarsman. In fact, at one time he was urged to become a professional oarsman. (In the late nineteenth century there was considerable betting on races on the river and strong oarsmen were much in demand.) Eakins declined the offer and instead concentrated on painting.

History of the Thomas Eakins Head of the Schuylkill Regatta

By Peter Van Allen

PHILADELPHIA is home to a large rowing community based around Boathouse Row, about a dozen historic boathouses on the Schuylkill. And the Head of the Schuylkill has been an integral part of that rowing community since 1971.

The Head of the Schuylkill, a 2.5-mile course, was started by members of University Barge Club, who wanted to build on the success of Boston's Head of the Charles Regatta.

"Here's the way it started," said Lyman Perry, a former Olympic rower and member of the club's executive committee. "There was a regatta at the time that was the Graduate Sculls Regatta. It wasn't too successful, so we were sitting around the executive meeting trying to figure out what else we could do. At that time, the Head of the Charles was several years old [started in 1965]. We said, 'Maybe we should model this on the Head of the Charles.' Long races weren't common then."

In head races, competitors race the clock over a course typically 2 to 3 miles long — sometimes literally leading toward a river's headwaters — compared to "sprint" races of 1000 to 2000 meters. Head races got started in England. While they are now a standard part of the fall racing season, at the time the Head of the Schuylkill was started there were very few in the United States.

In addition, races in the early 1970s typically featured just a few categories, mostly for elites, juniors and college rowers. Categories for masters, club racers, women and disabled rowers were not common.

The Head of the Schuylkill hoped to change that. A team including Perry, J. Pattison and Raul Betancourt went to work creating the regatta, relying heavily on the expertise of William M. Hollenbeck Jr., head of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen (a predecessor to USRowing).

"We leaned on Bill for his experience and connections. He was very instrumental," Perry recalled.

At the same time, the new effort required a lot of good, old fashioned grit.

"We weren't sophisticated. We didn't consult the Head of the Charles. We had rudimentary starting. We used milk cans and plastic jugs for buoys. We did everything ourselves," said Perry, an architect and designer of the regatta's early silkscreen posters. "It was really a seat-of-the-pants thing. We did the best we could."

By the third year, the regatta tied itself to the works of Thomas Eakins, a Philadelphia painter internationally known for his works featuring scullers on the Schuylkill. In the early years, the Regatta promoted the Thomas Eakins House and race winners received limited edition solid silver Thomas Eakins medals, according to John Basinski, the regatta's unofficial historian. Posters for the regatta featured a different Eakins painting each year.

"It took about 3 to 4 years for it to catch hold," Perry said. Yet the regatta did indeed catch hold.

By 2005, the Regatta grew to 1,100 crews from all over the country. Events encompassed recreational, adaptive and community rowers, as well as colleges, high schools and masters rowers.

"The big word we really want is 'inclusion,'" said Christopher Blackwall, who took over leadership of the regatta in 1986.

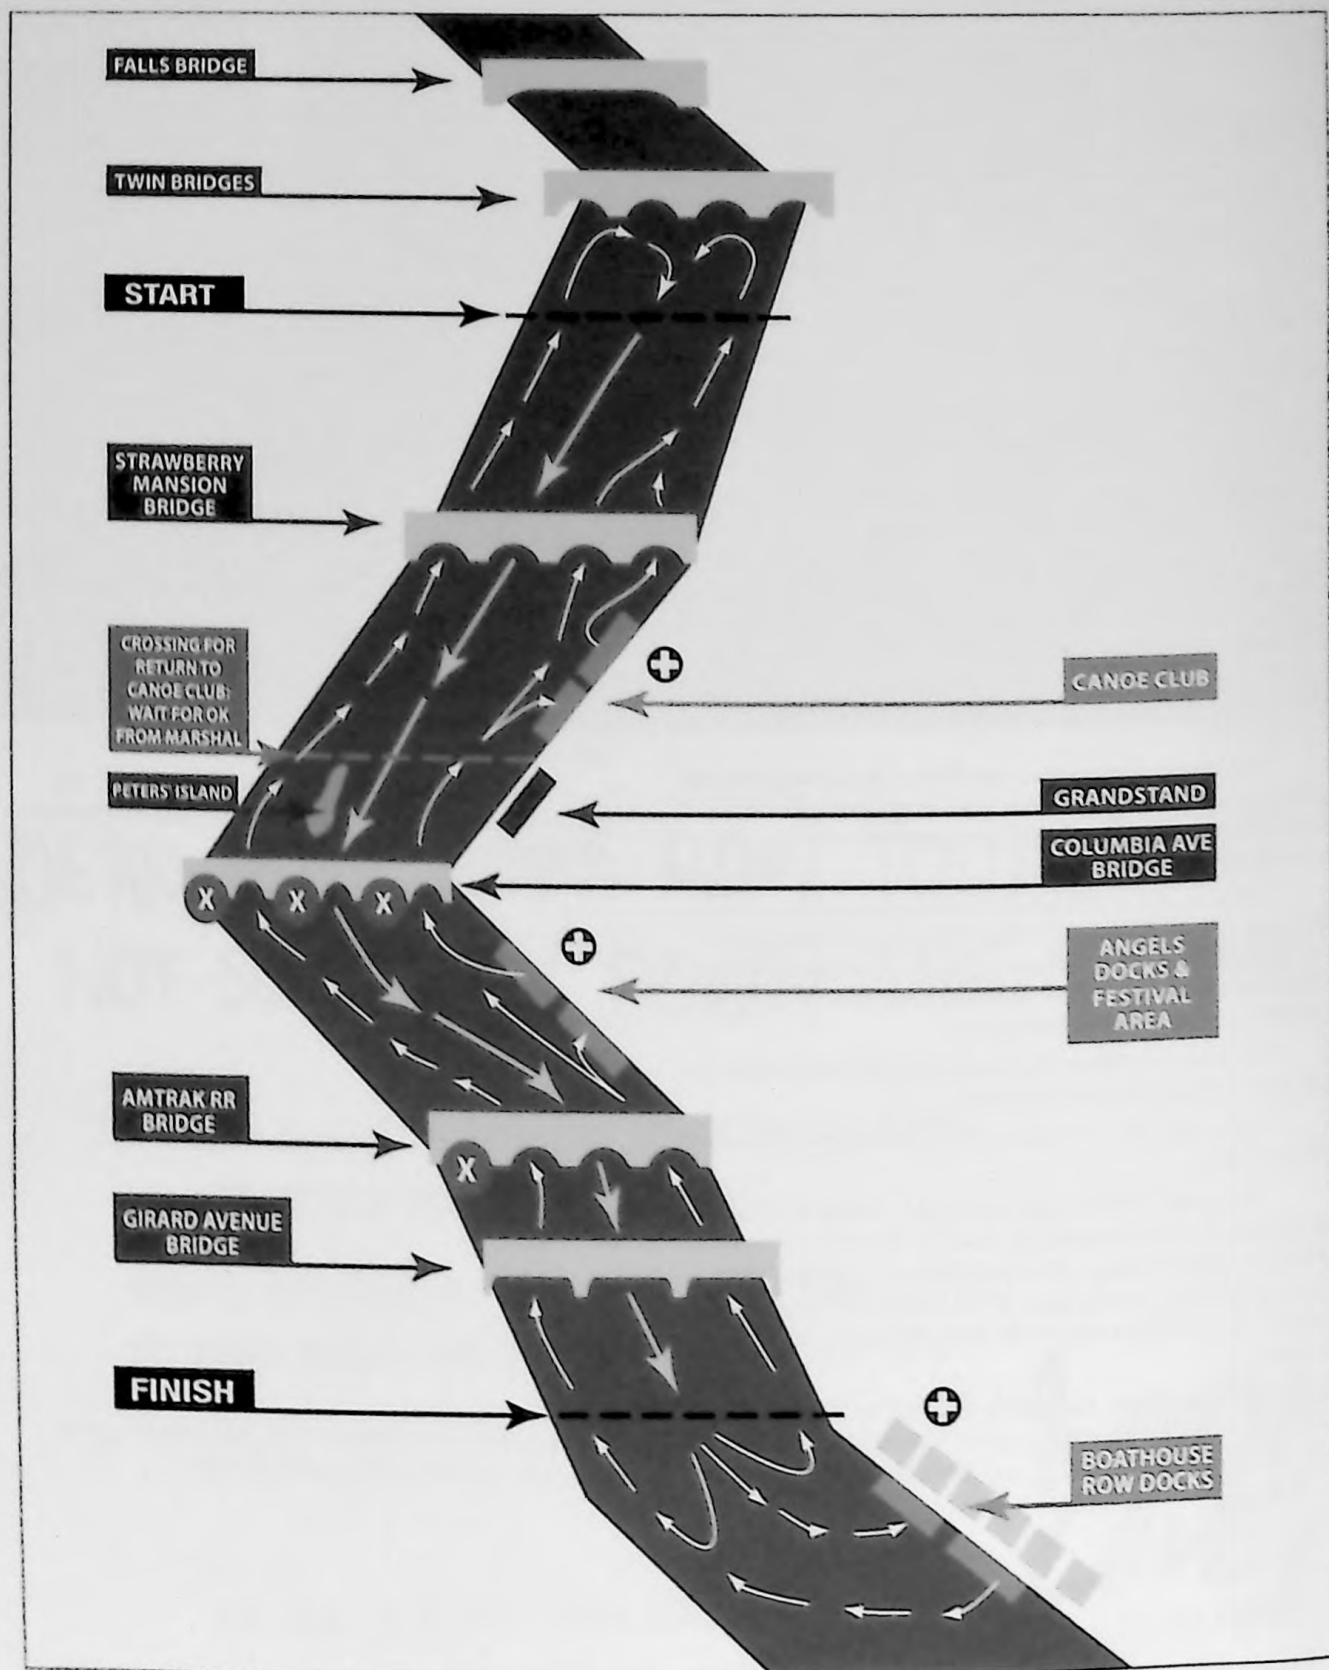

By the middle of this decade, it was billed as "the world's largest single-day rowing event." Alas, it gave up those bragging rights so it could expand to two days. The change also allowed more flexibility in the case of bad weather, which forced cancellation of the 2006 and 2007 regattas.

To make the Head of the Schuylkill more enticing to out-of-town crews, this year's event will include live music, parties and "legends" races.

"The hallmark of this year is different thinking," said Blackwall. "A lot of new thinking how to change the regatta for the better."

Peter Van Allen is a member of Malta Boat Club. He will be competing in the Mens Masters Single Sculls.

'Timely Tips' for Coxswains Navigating The Head of the Schuylkill Regatta

By John Hartigan, Coxswain

HAVING participated in many Head of the Schuylkill Regattas (HOS), I've come to realize that while oarsmen and oarswomen are the engine that drive the boat, the HOS is really "a coxswain's race to win or lose."

As a coxswain, I've had my share of great moments coupled with some blunders. But, at the same time, I've learned how to successfully compete in one of the world's premier fall rowing regattas. What follows is a checklist which you can use to make sure that your regatta experience is successful. Some of the points made may seem very obvious but it is still good to review them in order to assure you that you and your crew have a successful race experience. So, here goes....

GETTING READY TO RACE:

SAFETY IS KEY: If you're reading this on race day or earlier—get yourself a laptop and go to the Regatta's web site, www.hosr.org or "Google" The Head of the Schuylkill Regatta. The website is filled with useful information that will make your job easier. Check out rules regarding safety and race procedure. Remember – as the coxswain, you have primary responsibility for a safe race. It's important that you know these procedures and what you need to do in an emergency involving your crew.

CHECK YOUR EQUIPMENT: Whether 'off the trailer' or 'off the rack', always check your equipment. Riggers easily loosen and seats can come off the track – which can spell race disaster, if not maintained. Before each practice and on race day get your boat on some stretchers and go over it with diligence. To keep your team focused and in sight, involve each member of your crew in the maintenance check. It will make your job easier.

TALK TO YOUR CREW: While there is lots to see and enjoy at this regatta, continually stress to your crew the importance of staying together and not 'wandering off' on race day. Getting on the water on schedule is critical to preparing your crew to race. Build your coach's confidence in you by having your entire crew ready to race. If someone wanders off, the whole boat suffers with a rushed warm-up and possibly missing your scheduled race.

SCHEDULE A PRE-RACE 'CHALK TALK': Everyone in the crew needs to know times and strategy together so that there is no confusion. The chalk talk before racing must include your coach and boat squad to assure that everyone has the plan. Assume nothing! Say it once – then review it again with your crew so mistakes and misunderstandings on the water can be avoided.

RACE STRATEGY:

PRE-RACE 'WARM UP': Fact is – the race course – while organized – is going to be filled with hundreds of participating crews. Getting your crew warmed up will be a challenge. So, consider having your crew do some on-land warm up prior to boating. For example, a short run or some stretching can be a great help to your crew before they get on the water. Once you are "boated" and on the water allow plenty of time to warm-up and get to the starting line. Most important, stay focused. There will be lots of crews in front and in back of you so keep alert as you make your way to the start.

THE START: In the HOS you are basically racing the clock. Typically, head-race crews line up in single file and then are dispatched at intervals usually 10-15 seconds apart. This year the HOSR plans to try something new: sending crews off two at a time, approximately side by side. Regardless of how you start, the object is to successfully pass other crews and race the clock. Pay special attention to the RACE MARSHALS and REFEREES' directions on when to get into racing mode and start the racing. The referees are your best source for information and will keep you on track. And, ask questions if you do not understand a particular referee or official's direction to you. Don't be timid SPEAK UP RESPECTFULLY!

KEEP YOUR CREW MOVING:

My experience has always been to keep my boat moving and avoid boat stopping collisions which rob your crew of race momentum and can cause damage and injury. Avoid taking risks that can cause 'boat stoppers'. For example, if you're moving on a crew in front of you that will not move over, 'power' around them and avoid getting tangled up with them at all costs. In some other cases, it may make sense to 'power down' temporarily to avoid a collision with one or more boats such as on the three major turns when one of more boats may be going through the same arch at the same time.

You may have to go a little farther or slower than you planned but you gain when your crew keeps moving. You lose big when you're forced to stop dead in the water for any reason.

FINALLY, SPORTSMANSHIP MAKES FOR A GREAT RACE:

The Head of the Schuylkill Regatta is an exciting premier event that is a great learning experience for coxswains and rowers alike. Coxswains have an awesome responsibility, but the challenge is well worth the effort. Knowing the rules, attention to detail, being observant and communicating with your coach and crew make for a well run race. And, finally being respectful of the effort that every competitor is putting out are the keys to a great race experience for all.

Known for his booming voice, John Hartigan has been coxing on the Schuylkill for decades. A member of the 1968 and 1976 Olympic Rowing Teams, the 1975, 1979 1983 Pan Am teams and the 1974 Lightweight World Champion 8, John is also a member of the University of Pennsylvania Sports Hall of Fame. John continues to crew up and down the Schuylkill with the Masters Oarsmen of University Barge Club.

A Masters Guide to the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta

By Merrill Hill

I highly doubt that God is a masters rower, because on the seventh day, we'll be doing anything but resting! The Head of the Schuylkill Regatta has a long tradition in Philadelphia, and unlike another large head race in New England, you don't have to live in Philly to feel welcome. Regatta organizers will even tell you where to park and not get a ticket!

Although the course has changed several times over the years, and the weather doesn't always cooperate, the Schuylkill River provides an exciting venue for racing. This year's regatta format is borrowing from two famous regattas. The Henley Royal Regatta, in which boats of similar ability (we hope) are paired up at the start, and will slug it out to gain advantages on the course. And the other "famous" regatta being the Quaker City Regatta, whose theme is "race until your legs fall off." This year, masters can enter as many races as they want, as long as they are still alive at the start. Medals will be given out to the top three boats in all events, and they will be presented in some sort of organized fashion. The course is usually buoyed well, and detailed course maps are given to all competitors.

As with any large regatta, the shopping will be plentiful, as vendors often want to get rid of their leftovers from that other big east coast regatta. HOS regatta t-shirts often have museum type art work (thanks to Thomas Eakins), and are different every year. Best of all, after you've spent all your money, and rowed yourself to exhaustion, you'll still be able to afford an authentic Philly soft pretzel. Mustard is free. Have a great row!

Merrill Hill is a physical therapist by day, and a masters rower before dawn. She writes for Row2k and the NK newsletter, and has rowed the Head of the Schuylkill numerous times and has the t-shirts to prove it. In her spare time, she is a masters swimmer, vegetable gardener, and enjoys fixing broken rowers when the need arises.

History of the Schuylkill Navy of Philadelphia

By Peter Van Allen

Excerpted from Rowing News, reprinted with permission

PHILADELPHIA'S Boathouse Row stands like a beacon on the east bank of the Schuylkill River. For a century and a half, the rowing clubs have loomed large as a Philadelphia landmark. Every day, thousands of commuters pass the trademark lights of Boathouse Row — a tradition that started in 1976 just for the holidays but was extended year-round, now with tiny LED lights outlining the boathouses at night.

Last year marked the 150th anniversary of the Schuylkill Navy, the governing body that oversees the clubs on Boathouse Row. Formed in 1858, the organization is the oldest amateur athletic governing body in the United States. Despite the growth of rowing all across the country, it is a given that most oarsmen and oarswomen eventually test their mettle in Philadelphia, according to Clete Graham, Commodore of the Schuylkill Navy. The Navy sponsors some 40 races a year, helping to foster a sense of community for these amateurs.

EARLY DAYS

Racing on the river started when the Schuylkill was a working river. Men in oar-driven barges transported goods between mills, racing to see who could get a shipment downriver fastest. Eventually, competition took on a life of its own. Wagers were placed. Crowds showed up to cheer and bet on their favorites.

The first organized regatta on the Schuylkill took place Nov. 12, 1835, eight years before rowing started at Harvard, according to Joe Sweeney, historian at Penn A.C.

The Schuylkill Navy was founded when it was determined that the river needed a governing body to protect it from gambling, including fixed races. The Navy established a code of conduct, including a prohibition against wagering on races.

About the same time, the City of Philadelphia set aside a significant parcel of land surrounding the river to be known as Fairmount Park, which encompasses 8,000 acres. That laid the groundwork for the fact that today Boathouse Row is surrounded by runners, bicyclists, rollerbladers and other seeking recreation.

The Schuylkill Navy hosted its inaugural regatta in 1859, and the first national regatta was held in Philadelphia on Oct. 9, 1873. Also in 1873, the Navy was instrumental in gathering boat clubs nationwide to form the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen, a predecessor of USRowing.

Boathouse Row's unique culture has its roots in competition both on and off the water. In 1866, the city enacted guidelines for boathouse construction, ensuring that "future boathouses would be required to beautify the park while facilitating a sport of low environmental impact, according to historian Thomas G. Beischer. For Philadelphia gentlemen of the time, rowing was an "appropriately rigorous activity for the emerging leisure class," and the boathouses needed to reflect that. They are the work of the greatest architects of the day — most notably, Frank Furness, who designed Undine Barge Club and its upriver social club, Castle Ringstetten. In 1987, Boathouse Row was added to the National Register of Historic Landmarks.

OPPORTUNITIES EXPAND

For much of the late 1800s, rowing was dominated by the leisure class Philadelphians. But that started to change in the 20th Century, with an influx of immigrants. Among the well-known names was John B. Kelly Sr., a strapping bricklayer-and-oarsman who won three Olympic gold medals, in 1920 and 1924, and his son John B. "Jack" Kelly Jr., a champion sculler who rowed in four Olympic games, winning a bronze in 1956. Of course, the family also included John B. Kelly Sr.'s daughter Grace, who later became Princess Grace of Monaco. Both Kelly Sr. and Jr. served as Commodore of the Schuylkill Navy. In the 1980s, in honor of the Kelly family's contribution to rowing and Philadelphia's overall reputation, the road on which Boathouse Row sits was renamed Kelly Drive. A statue of John B. Kelly Sr. can be found near the grandstand at the racecourse finish line.

The Kellys had broken down the door, ensuring that rowing in Philadelphia would not simply be the domain of the blue bloods. This also opened the way for a strong tradition of rowing in the Catholic school system. Monsignor Bonner, LaSalle, Saint Joseph's Prep, West Catholic, Roman Catholic and others have had a major impact on scholastic rowing and competition.

THE GROWTH OF WOMEN'S ROWING

Until the 1930s, rowing on the Schuylkill was the exclusive domain of men. Ernestine Bayer, whose husband Ernest rowed in the 1928 Amsterdam Olympics, wanted to change all of that. Despite resistance, in 1938 she led a group of women who converted a skating club on Boathouse Row into Philadelphia Girls' Rowing Club. She later advocated for the inclusion of women in the Olympics, a goal attained in 1976. In 1984, Ernestine Bayer was the first woman elected to the National Rowing Hall of Fame. Today, all but one of the clubs on Boathouse Row have women members.

THE SCHUYLKILL NAVY TODAY

Today, the numerous Schuylkill Navy programs and regattas provide opportunities for all those interested in the sports of rowing — from novices to collegiate to masters to the disabled.

Peter Van Allen is a member of Malta Boat Club. He will be competing in the Mens Masters Single Sculls.

Legends of Boathouse Row Profiles

Through the generosity of friends and family, some of whom prefer to remain anonymous, several events have been sponsored in the name of legendary Boathouse Row competitors.

The Joseph William Burk Mens Masters B and C Single Sculls Races.

Joe Burk (1914-2008) was an oarsman and coach who grew up in Burlington County, NJ. At the University of Pennsylvania, he rowed in varsity boats. After graduating in 1934, he raced the single scull, where he won 46 consecutive races from 1937 to 1940. Among his victories were the Diamond Sculls medals in 1938 and 1939 at the Henley Royal Regatta. Competing without the prospect of material rewards, Burk, a one-time farm boy, was something of a celebrity. The Amateur Athletic Union presented him with the Sullivan Trophy as the nation's leading amateur sportsman in 1939 and cited him as "natural, unaffected and unspoiled" and "a fine example of young American manhood." He qualified for the 1940 Olympics, though the games were cancelled because of World War II, in which Burk served as a PT boat commander in the Pacific.

Burk coached the University of Pennsylvania varsity crew from 1950-69. Among his oarsmen was Harry Parker, who went on to become the longtime men's heavyweight coach at Harvard. Long after his years in the spotlight, Burk reflected on his sport and on his values. He told American Rowing magazine in 1996: "It's a shame, well, maybe it's a good thing that rowing gets so little publicity these days. You've got to do it because you really love it; there's no other reason." Elizabeth Hoak Doering's Tribute to Joe Burk, a bronze bas relief portrait, can be seen in front of the University of Pennsylvania Boathouse.

The medal ceremony will be at 10 am on Sunday.

Todd B. Craun Memorial Womens Open Heavy Championship Eight and Womens Open Light Championship Eight Races.

Todd Craun (1950-2009) began his rowing career at Northfield Mount Hermon School in Massachusetts and earned a seat on the 1968 Jr. US World Team. As captain of the Brown University crew, Todd led his crew to victory at the Eastern Sprints in 1972. Todd competed at Vesper Boat Club while attending law school. In 2003, Todd coached Vesper's womens eight that won at the Royal Holland Beker International Regatta. Todd supported the Club as a member of the Board of Directors and as a coach.

In the words of Todd's dear friend Ted Nash, "Todd Craun will always be remembered as an intelligent and helpful friend to everyone he ever met. He was generous with his time. No problem was too small for Todd. His ideas, professional knowledge, and a desire to help young people enjoy the sport of rowing were the honest and simple rules he lived by."

Dutch Olympic medalist Michiel Bartman was hired to run Vesper's revitalized elite program several years ago, and Todd was his assistant coach. Michiel recalls, "We talked a lot; we thought alike about a lot of things like the rowing technique, values in life and a lot of other things. I admired him for the person he was, being smart, analytical, supportive, giving me advice. But he also surprised me so many times with his humor. Todd was an essential part of the bronze medal at the 2008 World Championships won by Vesper's lightweight women's quad."

The medal ceremony will be at 6:30 pm on Saturday at Fairmount Rowing Association. Michiel Bartman will present the medals.

John B. Kelly Sr. Mens Open Heavy Single Sculls and Mens Open Light Single Sculls Races.

Philadelphia native John B. Kelly (1889-1960) won three gold Olympic medals: two in the 1920 Olympics while a member of Vesper Boat Club and one in the 1924 Olympics while a member of Pennsylvania Athletic Club. He won 126 straight races in the single scull. Because Kelly earned his living as a bricklayer, his entry to Henley's Henley Royal Regatta was rejected. His son, "Kell" however, came back to win the Diamond Sculls twice in 1947 and 1949, while a member of Vesper Boat Club. John B. Sr. was the father to Peggy, Kell, Grace, and Lizanne. Grace Kelly became an actress and Princess of Monaco. John B. Kelly Jr. also had an extraordinary rowing career representing the US at four Olympic games in addition to his Henley wins and became President of the U.S. Olympic Committee in 1985.

Kelly Sr. is the only rower who is a member of the U.S. Olympic Hall of Fame. He is also a member of the United States Rowing Hall of Fame, having been elected in 1956 at the same time as his son. There is a prominent statue of Kelly Sr. near the finish line of the Schuylkill River sprint course. It is located just off of scenic "Kelly Drive," which is named for Kelly Jr. Every year, US Rowing bestows the Jack Kelly Award on an individual who represents the ideals that Jack Kelly Sr. exemplified including superior achievement in rowing, service to amateur athletics and success in their chosen profession.

The medal ceremony will be at 10AM on Sunday.

Ted Nash Mens Open 4 with cox and Womens Open 4 with cox Races, sponsored by the 1988 Olympics silver medal straight four—Thomas Bohrer, Richard Kennelly, David Krmpotich and Raoul Rodriguez known as the "Killer Bs."

Ted Nash rowed in the U.S. coxless four shells that won medals at the 1960 – gold - and 1964 – bronze - Olympics. Nash won over a dozen national titles and won gold medals at both the 1959 and 1963 Pan-American Games. He was an Army officer and an aerobatics instructor in flight training for foreign pilots. He also taught guerrilla warfare for the famous 4th STORAC Division. Ted began rowing at the age of eight, in time moved on to Boston University and then the University of Washington and the Lake Washington RC. As both an athlete and a coach, he has participated in more Olympics - 11 - than any other individual.

In addition to being a great competitor, he has been an extraordinarily successful as a coach. He started with the freshman crew at Penn in 1965, winning six freshman eights at the IRA National Regatta and moved to the varsity job in 1970. Twice he led Penn (where he coached for 17 years) to unbeaten seasons. His 1972 varsity crew won the IRA and contributed to the Olympic team in four events. For 23 years he coached the Penn AC Rowing Association Elite Crew, producing over 40 rowers who made Olympic teams, and coached nine boats in either Olympic or Pan-American competition. He was an assistant coach of the 2004 Athens Olympics gold-medal-winning men's 8+ and an assistant coach at the 2008 Beijing Olympics. He has coached 72 crews that have won 43 medals in the World Championships, Pan-Am Games and the Olympics — a record.

Nash was also active as an administrator; he was a founder and past president of the National Women's Rowing Association and was a member of the U.S. Olympic Rowing Committee. Ted Nash, Richard Kennelly and David Krmpotich, all members of Penn AC Rowing Association, will be at the Saturday 4pm medal ceremony.

Sid Salomon Trophy for the Winner of the Mens Veterans Single Sculls.

Malta Boat Club presents the Sid Salomon Trophy each year to the winner of the Mens Veterans (60 and over) Single. Last year's winner was 77-year old Willem van der Linde of University Barge Club, followed by Jim Sweitzer of Maritime Rowing and Charles Gross of Monmouth Boat Club in third place. Sidney Salomon was the oldest competitive rower in this country at the time of his death at age 90 in January, 2004. Jack Sholl, at the time the Vice-Commodore of the Schuylkill Navy and a member of the Golden Eight in which Mr. Salomon rowed, said: "This planet is woefully in need of more Sid Salomons. We in rowing can be proud that he is one of us. Masters Rowers can be especially proud that he indeed characterizes Masters Rowing. For eighteen years he was a member of the Golden Eight, a masters crew, and has accumulated well over twenty FISA Veteran Regatta gold medals. His smile often revealed that he treasured those medals perhaps more than his two Silver Stars [one of which was for heroics on D-Day in World War II; he was portrayed by Tom Hanks in the film Saving Private Ryan], about which he never commented. His last time behind an oar was in an 8X (octuple) in the Navy Day Regatta at Philadelphia, October 10th 2003. The octuple averaged 79 years of age."

Mike Brown, President of Malta Boat Club, will present the trophy at 10am on Sunday.

The Stuyvesant B. Pell Mens Masters D Single Sculls and Mens Veterans Singles Sculls Races, Sponsored by Friends of Stuyve Pell.

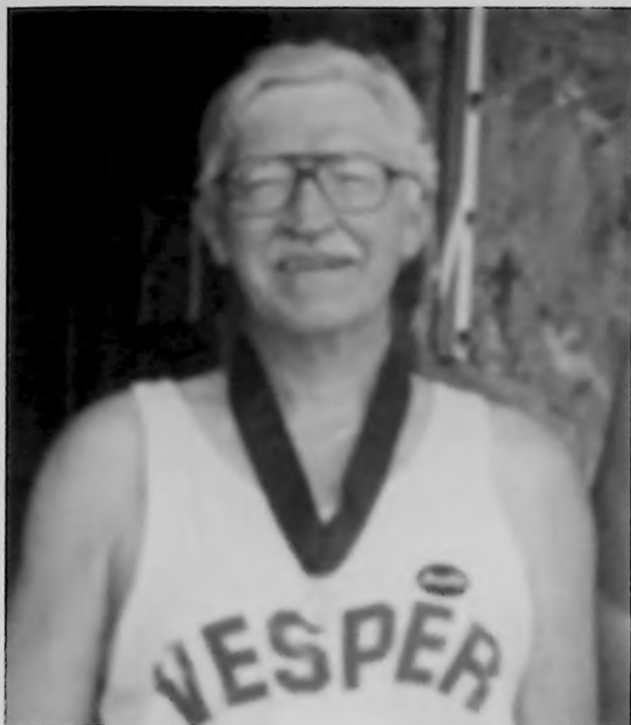

The late Stuyvesant Pell, who died in 2007, was a consistent first-place medal winner in masters rowing races at local, national and international regattas for three decades. Stuyve Pell began his competitive rowing career at St. Mark's School. At Princeton University he was a member of the 150-pound crew. Retiring from business in 1989, he devoted himself to running marathons and to rowing.

Rowing for the Carnegie Lake Rowing Association in Princeton (of which he was a founding member), he won his event at the Head of the Charles Regatta seven times; twice he set the course record in his age group. Rowing for University Barge Club, Stuyve won his event in the Head of the Schuylkill three times. In 1983 he won his first National Singles Championship in the Grand Master Class. At the 2006 FISA Masters Regatta on Mercer Lake, he convincingly won his age group in the single. His strategy was to row hard at the start to get ahead of the competition and to stay ahead for the rest of the race.

In addition, Stuyve volunteered at the Trenton after-school program. Working with small groups of elementary age children in one of Trenton's poorest neighborhoods, he developed a rapport with the students as he helped them with their homework, especially math. A skilled builder of model airplanes and boats, he often brought his latest project to class to add to their learning experience.

He was a remarkable person – a determined, often fierce competitor, as well as an old-fashioned gentleman. Two years after his death, he continues to inspire those lucky enough to have known – or to have known of – him.

A member of University Barge Club will present the medals at the Sunday 10am medal ceremony.

The Charles P. Colgan Memorial Mens Masters B, C and D and Mens Veterans Eight Races, sponsored by the Colgan Family.

Chuck Colgan, who died in 1999 at age 72, was the "Pied Piper" of US rowing, as a champion rower, as well as coach, referee, regatta organizer or whatever it took to further rowing in the US. As an oarsman, he started at Roman Catholic High School. Chuck was the stroke of the University of Pennsylvania V8, where he was a teammate of John B. Kelly Jr. In 1947 and 1948, he won four U.S. National Championships for Vesper Boat Club and later in life was quite successful as a masters rower.

For 45 years, he was a rowing coach at Columbia University, Cienfuegos Yacht Club in Cuba, the University of Pennsylvania, LaSalle College High School, St. Joseph's University and Vesper Boat Club. At the same time, he advanced as a referee, culminating at the 1992 Barcelona Olympics. He was manager of several US Junior Rowing teams, including the first, and founded the Philly Youth Regatta. He also ran the first US Master's National Championship Regatta and the first FISA Rowing Tour in the US.

Colgan was also instrumental in starting many rowing programs in Philadelphia, including the first women's team in an all-male club, another for inner-city youths and also one for people with mental disabilities. And leadership in many more aspects of rowing that space does not permit to list. The Charles P. Colgan Vesper Endowment Fund was established by Vesper Boat Club in his honor in 2000.

Brian Colgan, one of Chuck Colgan's adult children, a member of Vesper Boat Club, will present the medals at the Sunday, 12pm medal ceremony.

The Cipollone Family Womens Masters and Veterans Quad Race, sponsored by Members of the Penn AC Masters Group.

Gabriele "Gabi" Cipollone began rowing at 13 in East Germany. Competing for the GDR, she won gold in the women's coxed four in the 1976 Olympics and gold in the women's eight in 1980. In between, she managed two World Championship golds and a career as a construction engineer. In 1995, she and her two boys moved to the Philadelphia, where she married Mike. For the past seven years, Gabi has been assistant coach of the Bryn Mawr College crew, and now runs the masters program at Penn AC, including its learn-to-row component, which has grown to some 40 members.

Mike Cipollone is a regular on the Schuylkill, coxing masters eights out of Penn AC and Fairmount. He has been an assistant coach of Monsignor Bonner High School Rowing since 1979, mentoring hundreds of young athletes, including future USA Olympians and medalists. Mike began coxing at Bonner in 1966 and was inducted into the Bonner Hall of Fame in 2004. He continued at Marietta College and has been a fixture on Boathouse Row ever since. Mike and Gabi met at the 1993 Nike World Masters Games in Vancouver, Washington. Despite the temporary language barrier, Mike was instantly smitten by Gabi's radiant smile and stellar rowing technique.

Pete Cipollone began as a seventh grader in the Penn AC youth summer program in 1984 and was hooked. Pete coxed at St. Joseph's Prep and the University of California, Berkeley. In 1994, Pete made the USA coxed four and took silver at the World Championships. He was in the 1997-1999 USA three-peat gold medalist men's eight under Mike Teti. After finishing fifth in the 2000 Olympics, Pete coxed the USA men at the 2004 Games in Athens to a world record and a gold medal. Pete then retired from competition and now serves on the USRowing Board of Directors as Chairman of the Finance and Audit Committee.

Gabi and Mike Cipollone will be at the medal ceremony at 3:30pm on Sunday.

Dragon Boat Exhibition Races

By Jenna Beth M. Bayard

IN addition to Philadelphia's active rowing community, we have a growing dragon boating community. The Schuylkill is home to several strong teams that can be found on this spectacular river practicing in the morning and evening several times a week from April to October. Many of these teams travel to national and international competitions. One of them, the Philadelphia Dragon Boat Association, has earned the right to represent the United States in world competitions in mens, womens and youth competitions. In addition to the teams that paddle year 'round, many corporations, schools, and organizations put together teams as a bonding experience and compete on the Schuylkill in either the Independence Dragon Boat Festival held in June or Philadelphia's International Dragon Boat Festival, which was held earlier this month.

Two dragon boat exhibition races are scheduled for the Saturday lunch break, at approximately 12:45pm. The races will start just below the Columbia Railroad Bridge and finish at The Three Angels. Scheduled to compete are four all-women teams: Philadelphia Flying Phoenix (PFP) and The Schuylkill Dragons, and two breast cancer survivor teams, PFP's Against the Wind and Hope Afloat USA.

A BRIEF HISTORY

DRAGON boat racing dates back to almost 2,000 years ago in southern central China, where the races were part of a celebration of the summer rice harvest. Since 1976 it has been seen as a growing international sport for athletes of all ages. A dragon boat is a long, narrow canoe-shaped boat with a dragon's head on the front and a dragon's tail on the back. The boat holds from 10 to 24 paddlers -- most boats have 20 -- as well as a steersperson and a drummer. Half of the crew paddles on one side, half on the other. The steersperson is stationed at the back and is responsible for steering a straight course with a long oar. The drummer is seated at the front of the boat and uses the beat of the drum to send the pace set by the paddlers sitting at stroke in the front seat to the rest of the crew in the back. While race length can vary, a typical dragon boat race is 500 meters.

WOMEN'S DRAGON BOATING IN PHILADELPHIA

FOR women seeking to be on a team working towards a common goal, there are some unique opportunities in the dragon boat community here in Philadelphia. A woman looking to get involved with the sport has several options for teams at either a competitive or recreational level. The Philadelphia Dragon Boat Association (PDBA) has competitive teams that compete each year in a challenging race schedule culminating at the World Championships. The Philadelphia Flying Phoenix and The Schuylkill Dragons have competitive and recreational crews for women-only boats.

Hope Afloat USA and Against the Wind welcome all breast cancer survivors. These clubs, all of which have been organized within the last ten years, consist of from 25 to 100 diverse members spread out over the tri-state area, committed to the life long sport of dragon boat racing.

PROFILE OF COMPETING TEAMS

PHILADELPHIA Flying Phoenix was founded in 2003 and now boasts a membership of over 90 women of all ages and athletic abilities. With a strong competitive team and recreational program, women can challenge themselves to improve their fitness and skill while sharing the camaraderie of team membership.

Schuylkill Dragons was founded in 2001 and has members ranging from 24 to 73 in age. The women are committed to building healthy bodies and spirits and challenging themselves at whatever level they choose. Both its recreational program and competitive team work with a talented coaching staff to improve their skills.

Hope Afloat USA was one of the first breast cancer teams for breast cancer survivors, founded in 2001. Their mission is "...to encourage and support breast cancer survivors to 'Awaken the Dragon' within them through the sport of Dragon Boat Racing..." Hope Afloat USA traveled to Australia in 2007 to compete against breast cancer survivor teams from around the world.

Against the Wind, the breast cancer survivor team of Philadelphia Flying Phoenix, was also started in 2001. This team was formed to empower women who have survived the diagnosis and often devastating treatment associated with breast cancer to face challenges both on and off the boat in a caring and supportive environment. This dragon boat crew strives to improve physical strength, endurance and their competitive edge while enjoying the camaraderie of a fun-loving and nurturing group of women. Against the Wind also traveled to Australia in 2007.

Healthy Dragons is a dragon boat training program for middle school students co-sponsored by Philadelphia Flying Phoenix and The School District of Philadelphia. The program educates students about fitness, nutrition, responsibility, self-esteem, and teamwork. The students train on land throughout the winter and paddle on the water during the spring season. In May, all teams compete in the Healthy Dragons Festival organized just for these teams. After eighth grade, Healthy Dragon students are encouraged to join Philadelphia Dragon Boating Association's youth team, The Philly Yutes. Healthy Dragons is supported by generous grants from The Green Tree Community and from The Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

The Clubs of Boathouse Row

By Jenna Beth M. Bayard

BOATHOUSE ROW is a National Historic Landmark entered onto the National Register of Historic Places in 1987. All of the clubs located on the Row, along with Gillin Boat Club, are members of the Schuylkill Navy. Elsewhere in the Program Book is an article by Malta Boat Club's Peter Van Allen about the 150th Anniversary of the Schuylkill Navy, reprinted with the permission of one of our media sponsors, Rowing News.

FAIRMOUNT ROWING ASSOCIATION

FAIRMOUNT ROWING ASSOCIATION (www.fairmountrowing.org) was founded in 1877. The Boathouse containing Numbers Two and Three Boathouse Row was originally built in 1859 by Pacific Barge Club. #2 was torn down and rebuilt by Fairmount in 1904. #3 was purchased from

It has a large summer and smaller year-round Junior program that is excellent. Fairmount organizes the annual Quaker City Masters Regatta, usually the first Saturday in August. It is home to the rowing programs of La Salle University and Episcopal Academy. The Fairmount Log, edited by member Lee Silverberg, is Boathouse Row's monthly e-Newsletter of record. CRESCENT BOAT CLUB was organized in 1867. Their boathouse at Five Boathouse Row was finished in 1891 by renowned architect, Charles Balderston. In the 1950's LaSalle College temporarily took over as the sole rowing entity. The club was later reoccupied by Crescent under the leadership of long-time member and former club president, John Wilkins, which led to the club's rebirth. The club has members in its novice, junior, intermediate and master's program. Crescent is also home to the rowing programs of Roman Catholic High School and Merion Mercy Academy. Bill Shea is the current Club President.

Crescent's blades are red with a vertical white stripe toward the end of the blade.

UNIVERSITY BARGE CLUB

LOCATED at Seven Boathouse Row, the University Barge Club (www.universitybarge.com) was founded in 1854 by ten members of the freshman class of the University of Pennsylvania. The boathouse was completed in 1871 and was renovated in 1893 to hold eight-man shells.

In the beginning UBC limited membership to students and alumni of University of Pennsylvania, however, today it boasts a robust masters program open to women and men. UBC is the home of the rowing programs for Chestnut Hill Academy and The Springside School. The Thomas Eakins Head of the Schuylkill Regatta was begun at UBC in 1971. Ludlow Miller is the current Club President.

UBC's blades are royal blue with a wide, vertical, white stripe down the middle.

UNDINE BARGE CLUB

UNDINE BARGE CLUB (www.undine.com) was founded in 1856 by twelve Philadelphians looking for "healthful exercise" and "relaxation from business." The clubhouse at Thirteen Boathouse Row was designed by Frank Furness, a highly regarded Victorian-era architect, and built by Pennock Brothers in 1882. Undine's rowing program, with some 200 club members, is a mix of elite, masters, and recreational rowers. The Club had the second highest number of entries from Boathouse Row - 28 - in the 2008 Head of the Schuylkill Regatta. Undine hosts the rowing program for The Haverford School. Ray Del Bianco is the current Club President.

Undine's blades are white with a blue and yellow chevron pattern about one-third from the end of the oar.

COLLEGE BOAT CLUB

COLLEGE BOAT CLUB was formed in 1872 by University of Pennsylvania students who had severed ties with University Barge Club. Its membership is open to past and present rowers of the University of Pennsylvania. Their clubhouse at Eleven Boathouse Row was built in 1875 and has served as the home of the University of Pennsylvania's varsity rowing teams ever since.

University of Pennsylvania's blades are navy with a red triangle notched in at the end of the blade.

VESPER BOAT CLUB

VESPER BOAT CLUB (www.vesperboatclub.org) was founded on February 22, 1865 as the Washington Barge Club. In 1870, it changed its name to Vesper Boat Club and began its long run producing world-class crews; it is the long-time rowing home of Philadelphia's Kelly family. The boathouse at 10 Kelly Drive, completed in 1865, recently underwent substantial renovations.

Vesper's primary goal is to produce Olympic champions. Their year-round elite training program attracts some of the country's best rowers and is run by Dutch three-time Olympic medalist Michiel Bartman. They also have a large and active masters' program. In 2008, they had more entries than any other club in the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta (46).

Joanne Iverson, one of the key people behind the successful effort to get women's rowing into the Olympics, is the current club President.

Vesper's blades are grey on the top half and maroon on the bottom.

PHILADELPHIA GIRLS' ROWING CLUB

LOCATED at Fourteen Boathouse Row, Philadelphia Girls' Rowing Club, (www.philadelphiagirlsrowingclub.com) commonly called PGRC, was founded in 1938 by seventeen women who wanted to partake in the predominantly male sport of rowing. At the time, most of these women were wives of oarsmen in other rowing clubs on boathouse row. Today, PGRC is the oldest all female club in existence. Keeping with its female roots, it is home to the Agnes Irwin Day School for Girls rowing program. PGRC hosts the Bill Braxton Memorial Regatta in November, the last race of the season on the Schuylkill River. PGRC gives two Braxton scholarships each year. Sophie Socha is the current Club President.

PGRC's blades are royal blue with a diagonal white stripe.

MALTA BOAT CLUB

MALTA BOAT CLUB, (www.geocities.com/maltaboatclub) at Nine Boathouse Row, was founded in 1860 on Smith Island in the Delaware River. Several years later Malta purchased the clubhouse of the Excelsior Club on the Schuylkill River, taking over its current residence on Boathouse Row. Malta entered its first competitive race in 1865 in the six-oared gig at the Schuylkill Navy Regatta. Since that inaugural race, Malta has enjoyed tremendous successes at every level of national competition and was well represented at the 2009 World Championships with four members on the US racing team.

Malta is the home to two junior rowing programs, Father Judge and Shipley, and also sponsors a rowing program for St. Francis Xavier School. Malta hosts many active rowers who participate in Schuylkill Navy and Philadelphia rowing events through racing, volunteerism, officiating, and coaching. Malta's President is Mike Brown.

Malta's blades are royal blue adorned with a white, eight-point cross.

PENNSYLVANIA BARGE CLUB

FOUNDED in 1861, Pennsylvania Barge Club joined the Schuylkill Navy in 1865 and occupies Number Four Boathouse Row. As a result of World War II, the club suffered a drastic reduction in membership. Over the next several decades, the role of Pennsylvania Barge Club changed to more of an administrative center for rowing, including serving for a number of years as Headquarters for the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen. In 2008, Pennsylvania Barge Club was reactivated and in 2009 LaSalle College High School became its main tenant. In 2009 Pennsylvania Barge Club was reinstated as a full member of the Schuylkill Navy. Pennsylvania Barge Club will have several boats competing for the first time in the 2009 Head of the Schuylkill Regatta. The Club President is Michael Ragan.

PENN ATHLETIC CLUB ROWING ASSOCIATION

Brief Profiles of Ten Out of Town Clubs

THERE are some two dozen head races held during the months of September and October within driving distance of Philadelphia and other major East Coast cities. We appreciate the participation of all of the clubs that have chosen to compete in this year's Thomas Eakins Head of the Schuylkill Regatta®

COOPER ROWING CLUB

COOPER ROWING CLUB (www.cooperrowingclub.org) located in Southeast New Jersey on the Cooper River, began in 2005. Many of the early members were parents of high school rowers who wanted to try the sport for themselves. The club now offers membership to adults 18 and over and offers monthly Learn-to-Row programs. It hosts the Catch the Cooper Masters Regatta the first Saturday in June.

Cooper Rowing Club rows out of the Camden County Boathouse. Built in 2006, the boathouse also houses six high schools, Rutgers University's undergraduate and alumni program and a rowing program for the disabled, begun with the assistance of Isabel Bohn and Karen Lewis of the Philadelphia Rowing Program for the Disabled. Club President Eileen Normoyle says the club likes the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta because of the large size and the good competition.

NAVESINK RIVER ROWING

NAVESINK RIVER ROWING (www.navesinkriverrowing.org) is a community minded, volunteer driven, rowing organization located on the beautiful Navesink River in Monmouth County, NJ. Established in 1983 to "make rowing on the Navesink available, affordable and accessible to all," NRR has introduced hundreds of adults and teens to the skills, health benefits, and teamwork that make rowing an exceptional – and lifelong – form of exercise and recreation.

At its site in the town of Red Bank, NRR maintains single shells, doubles, and quads for use by its members, who range in age from 14 to over 80. The club also provides rack space for privately owned singles and offers lessons, coaching, masters' crew "camps," and an array of learn-to-row and competitive youth programs.

NRR has a long history of successful competition in major East Coast regattas. At last year's Head of the Schuylkill Regatta, Navesink competed in six quad events - five High School (under 19) and one Women's Masters (50 -59), with its most impressive performance being a 3rd place finish in the Women's HS quad race. NRR youth coach Mark Malone says NRR plans to enter twice as many races this year, with special hopes for several HS quads and the women's masters double.

The following clubs have made a commitment to enter three or more boats at the time of our publication deadline in late September. The profiles are a collaborative effort of Regatta Planning Committee members and Club representatives.

GREENWICH WATER CLUB

GREENWICH WATER CLUB, (www.greenwichwaterclub.com) on the picturesque banks of the beautiful Mianus River in Cos Cob, Connecticut, is home to the 300 rowers of Greenwich Crew. With 250 juniors ranging in age from 11-19 and a strong contingent of masters from ages 30-65, Greenwich Crew continues to successfully strive towards becoming a regular contender with the top clubs in the country. The masters earned 10 top-3 finishes for 16 entries in this year's Masters National Championships and the two-time state champion juniors are branching out beyond the eights to compete in small boats with convincing finishes in the doubles at the 2008 Head of the Charles and beyond. A masters men's quad from GC recently finished 3rd in the 25k Hudson River Challenge, a race from the George Washington Bridge to north of the Tappan Zee Bridge. With state of the art facilities and an impressive coaching staff, Greenwich Crew's junior and masters athletes are definitely ones to watch! Ashlee Branan, GC's Rowing Director, says the Club expects to enter boats in the junior boys and girls 8+, 4+, 4x, and 2x and in the masters mens 4+ and 1x and the womens 4x and 2x. They are hoping for medal finishes in each event, but realize the Schuylkill puts out some tough competition in every category!

UPPER MERION BOAT CLUB

THE UPPER MERION BOAT CLUB (www.uppermerionboatclub.com) rows on the spectacular Schuylkill River as well, but about 15 miles upstream, just north of King of Prussia in Montgomery County, PA. Formed in 1986 under the guidance of Tom Pappanastasiou, the club has about 85 active members, consisting of former college rowers, students home for the summer, and those who took up the sport as adults. Members row for many reasons including fitness, the pleasure of the outdoors, social interaction, technique improvement and competition. Upper Merion offers adult and family memberships and conducts an annual Learn to Scull clinic in the spring. The club also hosts the King's Head Regatta, popular with high school and master's crews, the last Sunday of September each year.

NEREID BOAT CLUB

NEREID BOAT CLUB, pronounced neer-ee-id, (www.nereidbc.org) in Rutherford, NJ was established in 1868 by an act of the state legislature. More than 100 members from New York City and Bergen, Essex and Hudson counties enjoy the calm waters of the Passaic River, which has little to no motor boat traffic.

With the expertise of Head Coach Boris Roque Alvarez, a former Cuban national champion, and Assistant Coach Oksana Tsimbalova, a former Russian national champion, Nereid offers a range of learn-to-row, novice and competitive programs targeting young and mid-career athletes. Nereid, which helped eight area public and private high schools establish rowing programs, currently hosts highly competitive high school teams from Montclair and Teaneck. In the last few years, Nereid rowers have won titles at the Head of the Charles, the Canadian Henley, the World Masters and US Masters.

Nereid is a member of the United States Rowing Association, the New York Rowing Association, and the Passaic River Coalition. Nereid is a co-host of the three-mile Head of the Passaic Regatta, which takes place every October.

UNION BOAT CLUB

UNION BOAT CLUB (www.unionboatclub.org) founded in 1851, is the longest continuously-operating rowing club in Boston. Since the earliest days of rowing on the world-famous Charles River, Union has been a major fixture in the rowing community. Over the many decades since the Club's founding, athletes from Union have competed and continue to compete at all levels of rowing competition. Union rowers and scullers have raced at virtually every major regatta in the United States, and at many major international regattas as well, including numerous trips to the Henley Royal Regatta dating back to 1914. Union is the sister club of University Barge Club of Philadelphia; the two Clubs have held an annual interclub regatta for more than 60 years.

Union Boat Club is also the home of many former United States National Team Members and Olympic medalists, who have both rowed and coached for the Club. Michelle Guerette, an eight-time senior US National Team member and two-time Olympian, recently joined the Club this year to serve as Head Coach.

The Club runs a number of competitive programs for both men and women, including both a Masters and a High Performance/Elite program, along with summer rowing opportunities for Junior rowers.

WILMINGTON ROWING CENTER

THE WILMINGTON ROWING CENTER (www.wilmingtonrowing.org) founded in 1984, is located in downtown Wilmington, DE on the beautiful Christina River along the Riverwalk. There are more than 150 active members who range from 14 to 75 years of age. WRC is also the home of the Concord High School, Delaware Military Academy, and St. Mark's High School crew teams.

WRC is known for hosting the Howard M. Smith Diamond States Masters Regatta. Since its humble inception in 1991, the Diamond States has matured into one of the premier national events for master rowers, with some 1300 rowers competing in nearly 100 heats. Spectators can see live video of the start line. The Regatta is named for its founder, who made extraordinary contributions to the sport as a rower, coach, official, and spokesman.

At last year's Regatta, WRC competed in the womens heavy doubles, womens masters four with and quad; mens masters singles, doubles, and four with; and mens veteran quad.

RIVERFRONT RECAPTURE ROWING

RIVERFRONT RECAPTURE ROWING (www.riverfront.org) is a 28-year-old non-profit in Hartford, CT that was created to restore access to the city's riverfront through park construction and planning, and to attract people to the riverfront by offering sporting, entertainment, and cultural events.

Riverfront Recapture Rowing began approximately 20 years ago with two borrowed training singles. Coaches brought the trainers into city high-school pools to expose and attract urban students to rowing. In the early 1990's Riverfront received a grant to purchase two eights to start a high school program; since the equipment lay idle in the morning, adult classes were soon offered before work. The equipment was housed in steel shipping containers and there was no electricity or running water in the park. A port-a-john was the only "amenity."

In 2002, Riverfront Recapture completed work on the $3.6 million Greater Hartford Jaycees Community Boathouse and participation in the rowing program grew dramatically. In the fall of 2009, Riverfront floated over seven eights of racing team men and women; five eights of recreational adults; eight eights of high-school rowers (the club team comprised of both suburban and urban students), numerous scullers, and an adaptive program run in partnership with Mt. Sinai Rehabilitation Hospital.

WHITEMARSH BOAT CLUB

THE WHITEMARSH BOAT CLUB (www.whitemarshboatclub.com) was formed in 2005 by several "founding mothers" to promote the sport of rowing to a broad base of existing and potential enthusiasts. Mary McKenna served as the Club's first Board Chair and President.

WBC is home to over 100 individual members, who represent a diverse mix of ages and skill levels. While many members rowed scholastically in high school or college and are returning to the sport as "masters," others have learned to row through Learn-to-Row or Learn-to-Scull adult masters classes. WBC is host to Bryn Mawr University, Germantown Academy, Lower Merion High School, Philadelphia University, Radnor High School (Girls), and Villanova University (Girls).

The Club, an associate member of the Schuylkill Navy, leases a portion of the Hines Rowing Center property in Conshohocken, PA. The Hines Rowing Center is led by Lois Trench-Hines, well known in the Philadelphia area for her competitive successes from Boathouse Row, her indomitable spirit, and her longtime support of rowing. Lois has been a member of the Philadelphia Girls Rowing Club since 1965.

Last year, many members from WBC competed in numerous local regattas. WBC has been represented in many Master events in the single, doubles, quads and eights events. This coming fall, for the first time, WBC will be represented in the prestigious Head of the Charles in the Master's Men's quad event.

SYDNEY ROWING CLUB

ON March 7, 1870, a meeting of seven men in the Oxford Hotel in King Street, Sydney, formally decided on the establishment of Sydney's original rowing club".

Located on the banks of the beautiful Parramatta River on Sydney Harbour, Sydney Rowing Club's ("SRC") (www.sydneyrowingclub.com.au) rowing programme caters for athletes ranging from juniors through to Masters Rowers. Over its rich history, SRC has produced 93 Olympians with many of our members regularly making Australian crews for world championship events.

Each year SRC hosts two head regattas on the Parramatta River and the prestigious Sydney Rowing Club Regatta at the Sydney International Regatta Centre, rowing venue for the Sydney 2000 Olympic Games.

Our Light Blues Squad are delighted to be competing in the Head of the Schuylkill Regatta and hope to make this an annual event and a lead in to the New South Wales and Australian rowing seasons. Our lightweight coxed four is Luke Woods, Simon Nola, James Winch, Lachlan Carter and Coxswain Gabby Poletto. Hugh McLeod represents SRC in the lightweight single scull. Glenn Bates is coach of the squad.
